Whitehill Hurls Washington Club To Fine Victory

Southpaw Holds Giants to Five Hits as Teammates Pound Out 4 to 0 Win in Third Game of World Baseball Series at Washington

BUDDY MYER IS HITTING STAR

Griffith Stadium, Washington, Oct. 5. — "Lefty" Earl Whitehill put the Washington Senators back in the thick of the fight for the world baseball championship here to-day when he shut out the New York Giants, 4 to 0, in the third game of the series.

The series now stands two games to one in favor of the Giants, National League champions, with the fourth game to be played here to-morrow. Washington, winners of the American League crown, dropped the first two games played at New York.

President Roosevelt was among the crowd of about 30,000 that saw the Senators win to-day.

Washington's big bats rang loudly to-day for the first time, nine hits being collected off Carl Hubbell, Simmons before he retired in the eighth inning in favor of a pinch hitter. Four of these went for extra bases. Herman Bell finished the game on the mound for New York.

NEVER IN TROUBLE

Whitehill, smooth-working southpaw, completely silenced the batting power of the Giants so evident in the first two engagements. He allowed only five scattered hits and at no time was in trouble. Washington gave their pitcher wonderful support and pulled off a pair of snappy double plays to help him out.

Buddy Myer, second baseman of the Senators, made up for his three errors in the opening game at New York by leading the Washington hitters to-day with three out of four. He also scored one of the four runs.

IN INITIAL INNING

With their backs to the ball the Senators landed on Fitzsimmons for a pair of runs in the first inning. Myer opened up by getting a single to left field. Goslin followed with a liner against the right field fence for two bases. Manush lifted to Ryan. Cronin grounded to Fitzsimmons, Myer scoring on the play. Schulte's two-base knock to right field scored Goslin. Kuhel hit to Jackson and Schulte was run down for the third out.

The Senators continued their scoring with another run in the second. Bluege doubled down the left field line, advanced to third on Sewell's ground out and scored on Myer's double to right field.

J. A. MACHRAY PASSES AWAY

Former Manitoba University Board Chairman Dies in Stony Penitentiary

Illness Took Critical Turn in Prison Hospital Three Weeks Ago

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 5.—John A. Machray, former chairman of the board and bursar of the University of Manitoba, died to-day at Stony Mountain penitentiary, where he was serving a seven-year sentence for theft of university funds.

Investment losses sustained by Machray on the trust funds he handled, and a systemic application of capital to make them up and pay interest charges dating back over a long period of years, were discovered by accountants who examined the books of Machray's firm.

Heaviest losers were the University of Manitoba and the Anglican Church. The trust funds of the university and of the diocese of Rupert's Land were heavily depleted. Machray was bursar of the university and chancellor of the diocese.

When he pleaded guilty to theft of $500,000 from the university and $60,000 from a former law partner, he was sentenced to seven years. Church officials declined to press charges, but were forced to launch a national campaign to restock their depleted treasuries.

For several years before his trial Macray was a sufferer from cancer. He was arrested while in bed and was unable to appear in court when his case was first called. Later, however, he went to the court house and silently listened to the brief proceedings before a magistrate.

Although his condition showed no improvement after he entered the penitentiary, it was not until three

WHERE LOS ANGELES RELIEF WORKERS LOST LIVES IN BRUSH FIRE

The above picture gives an impression of one of the hillsides in Griffith Park, Los Angeles, up which fire swept late Tuesday afternoon, killing twenty-seven men, and probably a number more as yet unlisted. The [illegible] miles from downtown Los Angeles. The fire occurred in a box-like canyon. The Times is able to present this picture and the one on page two to its readers so soon after the fire as a result of the speedy work of the NEA service in developing the photos, having cuts made and rushing matrices to its member newspapers.

Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 5.—Persons responsible for the disastrous Griffith Park brush fire, which cost twenty-seven lives, and for ordering laborers into the fire trap canyon, were sought in a threefold investigation to-day.

With a promise that criminal prosecution would follow any evidence of negligence, District Attorney Buron Fitts assigned a deputy to attend the coroner's inquest. At that hearing, scheduled for next Wednesday, a jury composed of fire experts, engineers and foresters, will hear evidence gathered by city, county and state investigators.

LIST IN DOUBT

Coroner Frank Nance to-day said the exact death toll of Tuesday's fire in the box-like Mineral Wells Canyon might never be known. The latest reports placed the missing at sixty-two, but many others were believed to be in hospitals or had failed to make their safety known to authorities.

Police said Robert D. Barr, twenty-nine, unemployed motion picture projectionist arrested on suspicion of arson, had not caused the fatal blaze.

Yachtsmen Tell of Huge Sea Serpent Seen Off Victoria

Major W. H. Langley and F. W. Kemp Describe Sighting Unusual Creature

Monster Seen on Two Different Occasions; Both Descriptions Identical

A giant sea-serpent, described as being nearly eighty feet long and about as wide as the average automobile, was seen last Sunday near Chatham Island about three miles from Oak Bay. The strange creature has been viewed by five persons on different occasions. On Sunday Major W. H. Langley, Victoria barrister and clerk of the Legislature, and Mrs. Langley saw it, and in August, 1932, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kemp and their son watched it disport itself.

Both parties saw the monster near the same spot, and while neither had any knowledge of the other's experience, their descriptions tallied exactly when they consulted.

Practically the whole of the serpent was seen by Mr. Kemp and his family, but Major and Mrs. Langley, who were about seventy feet away from it, saw but a portion of it. Mr. Kemp said nothing after seeing it last year, fearing he might be ridiculed. Since Major Langley saw the monster, however, and both descriptions agreed in every detail, both yachtsmen agree the sea serpent does exist.

The occasion on which the Kemp family saw the animal was during the first week in August of last year, while Mr. Kemp, who is a member of the provincial archives staff, was holidaying.

The family was spending the day on Chatham Island, near its northern point, which adjoins Strong Tide Island. Mrs. Kemp was sitting on the beach and saw a commotion in the water which threw a wash against the rocks similar to that caused by a motorboat.

STAYED ON ROCK

When Mr. Kemp's attention was drawn to the monster, he stated it was clearly evident that it was some huge denizen of the deep unknown in gulf waters. As the party watched, the monster slid about ten feet of its head and body on to a rock and commenced to rub itself against the rough surface.

At this time Mr. Kemp judged it to be about 300 or 400 yards away and although he could not see it distinctly was able to view its entire length, which lay on the surface of the water. From where he stood he could plainly see its serrated back, which, near the tail, resembled the cutting edge of a saw. After staying for two or three minutes the animal slid off the rock and went on its way down the channel, thrashing the water into a lather with its tail. The sun, glistening on its body, clearly showed its color to be a greenish brown.

Mr. Kemp described its head as being oval shaped, as he was not able to see any distinguishing features.

Mrs. F. Smart, 2050 Washington Avenue, did not go to jail for crossing an arterial highway stop sign.

A fine of $5, assessed last week by Magistrate George Jay, was paid yesterday afternoon by her husband.

The husband said his wife did not know he intended to pay.

No Oversubscription On Dominion's Refunding Issue, Ottawa Announces

If Applications For More Than $225,000,000 Are Made Larger Subscriptions Will Be Scaled Down to Make Fair Division For All

Next Tuesday Set For Loan Launching

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—The Dominion refunding loan to be launched next Tuesday will be for $225,000,000, and that amount has been set as a definite limit to subscriptions. This announcement was made to-day by Dr. W. C. Clark, Deputy Minister of Finance. In most previous loans a certain objective was set, but subscriptions were received for more than the amount aimed at, and the actual loan sometimes was doubled.

In this instance it has been decided in the event of oversubscription to issue the new bonds by allotment, scaling down the larger subscriptions to make a fair division. The books will no doubt remain open several days.

MARKET PROTECTION

This method of operation, the finance officials believe, will protect the "after market," preventing the slight lowering in the market value of the bonds which has been taken advantage of in the past where loans were heavily over-subscribed.

The experience has been in the past, after the books are closed on a loan, that has gone well over the objective, investors have been able to secure the bonds at a fraction lower than the original price. This is not expected to prove true in the forthcoming loan because of the definite limit set on the issue.

PREMIER TO SPEAK

The loan, which will provide for redemption of maturing securities, will be described in detail by Premier Ben-

ASSAILS BIG FIRE INQUIRY

Defence Counsel at Reichstag Trial in Germany Says Internationalists Failed

Associated Press

Leipzig, Germany, Oct. 5.—The London inquiry into the German Reichstag building fire was assailed vigorously to-day in the courtroom here where five men are on trial for starting the blaze.

Alfons Sack, defence attorney, cited an interview Garfield Hays, United States lawyer, granted the Paris correspondent for the Moscow newspaper Pravda, in which he quoted Hays as saying "the defence counsel in the Leipzig trial out to seek to establish who the really guilty are and not only to unburden their defendant."

FOUND NO AID

Sack asserted he had spent a night examining material placed at his disposal by the unofficial international London inquiry, but did not find anything "that could serve to prove who the real culprits are."

He declared it was unworthy of a German attorney to present as evidence mere rumors Nazi leaders had conceived the plan to burn the Reichstag building and that others had executed it.

"I protest against this slanderous campaign against German justice," Sack shouted.

Hays' name cropped up early in today's proceedings as defence counsel struggled to establish an alibi for Ernst Torgler, one of the defendants.

Torgler contends perhaps the person seen with him in the building the day of the fire was a Communist student named Kerrl and not Marinus Van Der Lubbe, confessed incendiary.

LUBBE'S TESTIMONY

At yesterday's session Van Der Lubbe, an eccentric Dutchman, stubbornly insisted he had set the blaze unaided last February.

Van Der Lubbe asserted there were no accomplices and added he had not even seen Ernst Torgler, one-time German Communist leader, either in the Reichstag building the day of the fire or at any time before.

SAYS HITLER CONSPIRATOR

James A. Rowan, British Delegate, Addresses U.S. Labor Convention

By Clarence M. Wright, Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Oct. 5.—A denunciation of Adolf Hitler as a "conspirator" with Capitalism and Communism against "true democracy" was put before the American Federation of Labor convention here to-day by James Rowan, representing the British Trades Union Conference.

Pointing to the different reactions to the depression that had developed in the United States and Europe, Mr. Rowan and said that "almost at the moment when your president was beginning your movement, which we are watching with great sympathy, another was starting in Europe.

"It was a movement to destroy the institutions of free citizenship, and it already has engulfed a good portion of Europe."

Recalling the German trade unions with 8,000,000 members before Hitler, he said they had been wiped out overnight "as if their movement had been a feeble, struggling thing."

"In Germany," Mr. Rowan told the convention, "it is a well planned conspiracy on the part of former leaders to regain the power they lost when they lost the war."

Ablest Men To Aid When Liberals Take Office, Says Leader

Governing B.C. Is Not One-man Job, States Pattullo, So He Proposes to Call in Persons of Keenest Minds in All Branches of Endeavor

Canadian Press

New Westminster, Oct. 5.—T. D. Pattullo, provincial Liberal leader, made it plain to a capacity audience in Canadian Legion Hall here yesterday evening he does not regard the government of British Columbia as a one-man job.

He appealed for the support of people of all varieties of past political associations to rally behind the principle of solid, stable government, and at the same time pledged himself to ask the co-operation of the best brains in every branch of endeavor in seeking solutions for the complex social and economic problems of the day.

"We do not intend to legislate or administer for the benefit of the Liberal Party," he declared, "but for the whole people of British Columbia.

"We want the best brains in British Columbia, experts in every line, around us when we tackle these big problems."

ECONOMIC COUNCIL

It was with this in mind that the Liberal Party had endorsed the formation of an economic council, representing all branches of industrial, commercial and labor effort, to advise the government and to initiate measures designed to co-relate industrial activity, he said.

"I am not an expert agriculturist, or an expert in mineralogy," he said, "but on the economic council I hope

FAN DANCERS TESTING LAW

New Yorkers Are Promised Chance to See Act Chicago Lost

Canadian Press and Associated Press

New York, Oct. 5.—Two Broadway theatres and a couple of slim, young, blonde fan dancers are getting ready for action.

The theatres advertised to-day that the fan dancers would be on their next bills. The announcement means Broadway is going to try and get away with something Chicago would not permit.

The opening gun in the fight of the fans against censorship will be fired next Thursday in Brooklyn, across the East River from Manhattan and Broadway, but still a part of metropolitan New York.

Peggy Heavins, who claims to be the original fan dancing girl, will waltz out on a Brooklyn vaudeville stage. To-day she said there would be nothing between her and the audience, but two slow moving fans of large proportions.

The following day Sally Rand, given a one-year sentence in Chicago for doing her fan dance at the fair and then given a chance to argue for a new trial, will open in Broadway's largest theatre with her fans.

If Peggy succeeds in Brooklyn in keeping out of the hands of the law, she will bring her fans to Broadway's oldest vaudeville theatre a few days hence.

Peggy expects to be arrested. She has been arrested many times before.

Japan Preparing To Fight States Says Upton Close

American Writer, Who Was Barred From Manchoukuo, Here To-day, Expresses Opinions

Says Present Situation Parallel to That of 1904, When Japan Took Korea

"Japan is now definitely and methodically preparing to put the United States out of the West Pacific picture by force, as she did Russia in 1904," stated Upton Close, well-known traveler, author and lecturer, who passed through Victoria this morning on the Ms. Aorangi after several months spent in Japan and the Hawaiian Islands. He was accompanied by Mrs. Close.

"When President Roosevelt," Mr. Close said, "authorized the resumption of the building of the United States Navy, the Japanese gave up hope of bluffing and persuading the people of the United States to withdraw from the Pacific. Japan now means business. China is waiting to see if we mean business, too. As long as she thinks we do, she will hold out."

Mr. Close and members of his party, who sailed from Victoria in June by the Ss. Empress of Canada, had an exciting time in Japan this summer. Because of his criticism of Japan in regard to its activities in Manchuria, Mr. Close found himself banned from Manchukuo by Japanese officials, and faced with an intense newspaper campaign inspired against him in Japan by young Jingo officials. He was allowed to fly over Manchukuo, though, on his way to Peiping.

Publisher Died In London To-day

London, Oct. 5.—Viscount Cowdray, owner of the once defunct Westminster Gazette and reputedly very wealthy, died to-day at the age of fifty-one.

He was one of the trustees of The London News-Chronicle and chairman of the Westminster Press, publishers of a number of provincial papers known as the Starmer group.

Weetman Harold Miller Pearson, Second Viscount Cowdray of Midhurst, was born April 18, 1882, and educated at Rugby and Christ Church College, Oxford. He succeeded his father in the title in 1927. He married Beryl, daughter of Lord Edward Spencer Churchill, and they had one son who died at the age of five. In 1906 he contested the County of Rutland for the Commons.

FREEDOM OF PRESS ENDS IN GERMANY

Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 5.—The German government struck a death blow at the freedom of the press to-day in laws declaring journalists public officials, and establishing the supreme penalty for German newspaper men who send treasonable literature abroad or attempt to introduce such writings into their own country.

"It is the absolute right of the state," said Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, "to supervise the formation of public opinion and see that it does not pursue paths leading away from the common weal."

Under its stern provisions, ironclad rules were laid down for German journalism whereby Aryanism and Nazi patriotism were made primary professional qualifications.

The new law was interpreted to-day as ending finally freedom of the press, as understood.

Political Paragraphs

Twenty-four Talking Days to Election

Military Titles and War Records in Politics.
A Straight Conservative Slate?
Three New Non-partizan Candidates.
Mr. Anscomb Running as Independent.

Canadidates nominated to-day: Liberals, 46; C.C.F. 43; Tolmie Unionists, 9; Non-partizan, 21; Independents, 47; United Front, 20; Socialists, 4; Labor, 2; Independent C.C.F., 8. Total 200.

Soldiers in politics, linked with the subject of the use of military titles in civilian life, has become a topic of discussion as "Parsons in Politics" was a few weeks ago, since the Conservative-Unionists launched their ticket of ex-officers.

* * *

As pointed out recently in Political Paragraphs, Robert Macnicol, provincial secretary of the Canadian Legion, notes that a number of candidates in the B.C. fight are men who served overseas, but thinks they will not improve their chances of election by boasting their overseas service.

* * *

"To play up their war service will injure rather than help candidates' chances of success, Mr. Macnicol believes. "The members of the audience invariably misunderstand the motive. It is now too long after the war for service overseas to be the chief qualification for a legislator, and it is poor strategy to expect votes on that account only."

J. B. Clearihue, who is a major in the militia and a captain and Military Cross man of the Great War, does not use his title in civilian life. T. Guy Sheppard, who was also a captain and a Military Cross man in the Great War, has also dropped the use of the title recently.

* * *

A reader sends a lengthy article, written in London, on the continued use of military titles by temporary officers of the Great War. The article quotes the case of the British Minister of Agriculture, who served as a temporary officer in the Great War, and announces he prefers to be known as Mr. Elliot rather than Major Elliot.

* * *

"It is well," says the London writer. "Since the war all manner of people who then became officers have retained—or rather, have flaunted—their temporary army rank in civilian faces. To quote an ex-army man: 'Since the war British army rank has become so cheapened that it has lost any pretensions it ever held to a certain status'."

* * *

"I know of many regular officers who, when on leave of away from their corps, prefer to drop their rank rather than be liable to become confused with a promiscuous crowd of cruising colonels, city majors and surburban captains . . . One way of reducing the plethora of army titles, and thereby reinvesting the various ranks with their proper meaning and dignity would be to allow their use only by professionals on the active list, and members of the territorial army and reserve formations when employed in training, with the stipulation that all rank should be given up on retirement," the article continues.

Japan Preparing To Fight States, Says Upton Close

Mr. Close received no official interference in Japan, he stated in his cabin aboard the Aorangi this morning. He said, however, that members of his party were subjected to unreasonable and pointless ill-treatment by Japanese officials in Manchukuo. This treatment brought a protest to the Japanese government at Tokio from the United States Embassy. I was pointed out by the embassy, that in view of the freedom given Japanese journalists and speakers in the United States, that the accusations against Mr. Close be aired in the open. Mr. Close said to-day, that since the accusations were an attempt to squelch friendly, but frank criticism and thought of Japan's actions, the accusations were not brought out. Many of his Japanese friends, he said, expressed resentment at the treatment given him by government officials and the vernacular press.

"The Japanese people have been propagandized to the point where they will now not permit any ruling clique at Tokio to abandon the campaign for domination of China and the Pacific—the great empire that has been promised them," Mr. Close stated. "In harmony with United States sentiment and policy since the days of the clipper ships, the Washington government has not seen fit to withdraw its moral support and material encouragement of an independent China, in spite of Japan's threats and even direct action."

OBJECT TO LOANS

"There is violent comment in Japan," he continued, "about United States loans to China without Japanese permission, and ominous comment regarding the seventy or eighty young American army officers who are training China's flying corps."

"It would bleed Japan to death to conquer China piecemeal," he stated. "That she has learned from her experiences in Manchuria. Her only hope is to end America's help and moral support of China. Then Chinese rulers would surrender, and Japan could economically and politically dominate China through them. The situation is parallel to that which caused Japan to prepare for ten years, and then leap, without declaration of war, on Russia in 1904. Japan had conquered Korea, but the Koreans would not submit as long as they had the moral and material support of Russia in resistance."

U.S. FOOLED

Mr. Close said it was high time the people of North America, and the world, were stopped being fooled by the Japanese Government officials. Every day, he said, the Japanese papers carried anti-United States propaganda. The people on this side were fooled when influential and polished diplomats from Tokio came here and gave lengthy interviews, stating that war with the United States was unthinkable. "The people of the United States must wake up to true facts," Mr. Close stated.

Mr. and Mrs. Close crossed a month ago from Yokohama to Honolulu by the Ss. Empress of Japan. They remained a few weeks in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Close knows the Orient, particularly Japan, extremely well, having been there on many occasions to study conditions. He is fond of the Japanese people, he said, and has some very good friends there, including Baron Shidehara and the "treaty group" that was kicked out by the rise of the military junta in 1931. He was one of the chief fighters in the United States against the discriminatory clause to the Japanese in the Immigration Act of 1924. The articles which annoyed the Japanese appeared in The Saturday Evening Post and The New York Times. He is the author of several books on the Orient, chief of which are "The Revolt of Asia," "Outline History of China" and "Eminent Asians."

Mr. Close was born Josef Washington Hall. He is a native of Washington State and from 1922 to 1925 was on the faculty of the University of Washington. He gained his pen name in 1918 in circumstances arising from the Japanese invasion of Shantung province, where he was investigating conditions for the United States Government.

BUSINESS GAINS

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—A rising tendency in retail sales during August is indicated by index numbers now available, it is reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Although the index showed a slight decrease as compared with the preceding month, it was much smaller than that which occurred in 1932. The index number of retail sales in August of the present year was 73.2, compared with 73.6 in July. There was, however, a fall of 5.6 points from July to August, 1932, and of 5.1 points from July to August, 1931.

Germany Criticized At League Session

Political Commission at Geneva Hears Addresses on Minorities, Including Jews; Canada's Success Pointed to By Manion

Geneva, Oct. 5.—Germany to-day faced a barrage of criticism, including Canada's. Successive speakers of different countries in the political commission of the League of Nations condemned that country for its treatment of the Jews, and summarily rejected the Hitler conception of an ethnic German nation—a nation not limited by political frontiers.

The committee room was packed with delegates and the public gallery was crowded with persons who broke into cheers as the different speakers made their points.

Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals and leader of the Canadian delegation to the League, opened the day's discussion. While he made no specific reference to Germany, he stressed how Canada had settled its minorities problems on the principle of equal rights for every race and religion, an unfettered press and free parliamentary institutions.

The Irish Free State urged an international agreement guaranteeing minority rights, and Baron Aloisi of Italy declared minorities within any state were entitled to enjoy a peaceful existence.

FRANCE'S POSITION

The discussion reached its climax in a speech by Senator Berenger of France. With no equivocation France stood by her old revolutionary doctrine of the rights of man, he said. "In the name of the French Republic," Senator Berenger exclaimed, "I uphold the principle of the Revolution, which proclaimed the rights of man, of all citizens, without distinction of race, religion or origin."

And M. Berenger formally proposed that in its resolution to the League Assembly, the committee should reaffirm the Assembly's resolution of 1922, which provided states under no legal obligation to the League are none the less required to grant to their minorities without distinction of race or religion the same degree of justice they would be required to grant them under the minorities treaties.

All this came on top of yesterday's outspoken British denunciation of the new German argument that nationality implies a racial origin without regard to present-day frontiers, that Jews are neither a racial nor linguistic minority and therefore the League, under its conception of the rights of minorities, has no competence to deal with the German-Jewish question.

CANADA'S RECORD

Canada's constitution provided for equal existence and equal rights of two great races and two great cultures, said Dr. Manion. And those two races, English-speaking and French-speaking, lived in peaceful content side by side, working and cooperating in creation of a great nation.

During the last thirty or forty years other peoples had entered Canada, he continued. They came from various European countries. They too enjoyed Canadian tolerance and freedom.

"While a state of perfection is not attainable in this world," said Dr. Manion, "I suppose our conditions in regard to minorities are about as near perfection as any country can attain."

Not only were the two great races represented in these free institutions, but in the Canadian House of Commons sat members originally from European countries—with three, if not more, of the Jewish faith.

IRISH STATEMENT

The Irish Free State took the occasion to protest against "her shameful and forcible partition" under the Anglo-Irish Treaty. On the general question of minorities, Sean O'Kelly, representative of the De Valera regime, thought the present minority treaties should be enforced by a general convention.

MAN WHO SHOT DOLLFUSS WAS NAZI

Vienna, Oct. 5. — Police announced to-day they had definitely established that the former army bugler, Rudolf Dertil, who on Tuesday attempted to assassinate Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss joined the Nazi Party about a year ago.

Dertil admitted his former membership, the police alleged, but said he had resigned six months ago.

Whitehill Hurls Washington Club To Fine Victory

Washington's final run came in the seventh. With one away, Sewell reached a newborough second. Sewell second, went to third on an infield out and scored on Myer's single to right, his third hit of the game.

FIRST INNING

Giants—Moore up. Moore lifted a short fly that Goslin caught just inside foul territory as he bounced against a field box. Critz up. Critz bounced to Bluege and was thrown out at first. Terry up. Terry hit the first ball pitched to Myer and was an easy put-out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Senators—Myer up. The Senators asked for the ball and appeared satisfied with one look. Myer poked a single through the infield to left. Goslin up. Goslin hit the first ball pitched against the right field fence for a two-bagger. Manush up. Myer was on third base and the Giants had a quick conference with Fitzsimmons. Manush flied out to Ryan, who took the ball in short left field. Cronin up. Herman Bell warmed up for the Giants. Cronin bounced to Fitzsimmons, who made the put-out at first base, while Myer scored and Goslin went to third. Fitz made a difficult stop but dropped the ball and was unable to make a play at the plate. Schulte up. Goslin scored on Schulte's hit to right, which went for two bases when the Senator outfielder beat Ott's throw to Ryan on a close play. Kuhel up. Kuhel bounced to Jackson and Schulte was run down between second and third base, Jackson to Critz. Two runs, three hits, no errors, one left.

SECOND INNING

Giants—Ott up. Ott drove the first ball pitched to deep left field, where Manush made a sensational running catch close to the foul line. Davis up. Davis cracked a single past Bluege. Jackson up. Davis went to second on a wild pitch. Sewell got his glove on the ball but could not stop it from rolling away. Whitehill was having difficulty controlling his curve ball. Jackson walked, the fourth ball being low and inside. Mancuso up. Mancuso hit to Cronin and the Senators engineered a double play that ended the inning, Cronin to Myer to Kuhel. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Senators—Bluege up. Bluege doubled down the left-field foul line. The ball was only inches inside the chalk mark as it sped past third base. Sewell up. Sewell bounced to Critz and was tossed out at first. Bluege ran to third. Whitehill up. Bluege started for the plate on an attempted hit-and-run play but it failed to work as Whitehill hit into the dirt. Whitehill grounded to Fitzsimmons, whose throw to Jackson [illegible] Bluege in the latter slid back into the bag. It was a fielder's choice and Whitehill reached first. Myer up. Bluege scored on Myer's double along the first base line. Whitehill pulled up at third base. It was another close to the line hit and Fitzsimmons had another confab with Terry. Goslin up. Goslin lifted a high fly to Moore and Whitehill was thrown out at the plate on a fine throw to Mancuso completing a double play. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

THIRD INNING

Giants—Ryan up. Ryan hit a looping drive that Myer caught with his gloved hand in short right centre. It was a spectacular catch. Fitzsimmons up. Fitzsimmons slashed a base hit on a drive that bounced off Manager Cronin's arm. Moore up. Moore hit the first ball pitched to Cronin and Fitzsimmons was forced at second, Cronin to Myer, but Moore beat the relay to first. Critz up. Critz singled sharply over second, and Moore raced all the way to third. Terry up. Whitehill tossed to first. Terry grounded out to Kuhel unassisted. No runs, two hits, no errors, two left.

Senators — Manush up. Manush grounded to Ryan and was thrown out at first. Cronin up. Cronin dribbled a grounder to Critz and was an easy putout. Schulte up. Schulte poked a hit past Terry for a single. Kuhel up. Kuhel grounded to Jackson and Schulte was forced out at second on the throw to Critz. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

FOURTH INNING

Giants—Ott up. Ott fanned, swinging at a high, hard one, and the crowd roared. Davis up. Davis rolled out, Myer to Kuhel. Jackson up. Jackson lashed a double to deep left centre. Mancuso up. Mancuso hoisted a high fly to Schulte. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Bluege up. Bluege rolled to Ryan, who made a nice throw for the putout. Sewell up. Sewell hit the first ball to Davis in deep centre field. Whitehill up. Mancuso made a nice catch of Whitehill's high foul at the edge of the Giants' dugout. No runs, no hits, no errors. None left.

FIFTH INNING

Giants—Ryan up. Ryan grounded out on the first ball pitched as Whitehill made a leaping one-hand stop and then threw to first. Fitzsimmons up. Fitzsimmons grounded out, Bluege to Kuhel, who made a nice catch of the third baseman's wide throw. Moore up. Moore bunted to Whitehill and was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Senators—Myer up. Myer's Battle taking a called third strike. Goslin up. Goslin lifted a high fly to Davis, who took the ball in right centre. Manush up. Manush hoisted to Ott. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING

Giants—Critz up. Critz grounded out, Bluege to Kuhel. Terry up. Terry grounded out on the first pitched ball, Kuhel making the putout unassisted. Ott up. A pigeon settled down on the infield and refused to leave when shooed off the first base line by Catcher Sewell. The bird took up a roosting place by second base.

Ott struck out for the second straight time, swinging wildly at a high curve. His bat slipped out of his hand. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Senators — Cronin up. Cronin cracked a single to right field. Schulte up. Fitzsimmons tossed to first. Ball one. It was a pitch out and Mancuso almost caught Cronin off first base on a quick throw. Joe slid into the bag and got his new suit all dirty. Schulte lifted a short foul that Terry grabbed. Kuhel up. Critz made a circus stop, backhanded on Kuhel's sharp grounder and tossed to Ryan for a force out of Cronin at second base Kuhel reached first base. Bluege up. Ball one, it was a pitch out and Kuhel was thrown out trying to steal, Mancuso to Ryan. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

SEVENTH INNING

Giants—Davis up. Davis got his bat in the way of a slow ball and it rolled to Whitehill, who made an easy put-out at first. Jackson up. Jackson clouted a long fly to Manush. Mancuso up. Mancuso rapped a grounder to Bluege and was tossed out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Senators—The skies were almost clear now, and the crowd stood up for a stretch. Bluege up. Bluege popped to Terry, who backed up into the grass to make the catch. Sewell up. Sewell dribbled a roller that Ryan failed to stop near second base and it went for a single. Whitehill up. Whitehill tried to bunt and missed. Mancuso threw to first, but Sewell got back safely. Again Whitehill failed to bunt and Mancuso's throw to Terry got away. Sewell raced to second. Sewell was credited with a stolen base. Whitehill rolled out, Critz to Terry, Sewell advancing to third. Myer up. Sewell scored on Myer's single to right. It was Myer's third hit of the game. Goslin up. Goslin fanned, swinging at a fast knuckle ball. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

EIGHTH INNING

Giants: Ryan up. Ryan started to back away at the umpire's decision on a called strike. Terry ran out and the crowd booed after he lost the argument. Ryan's high fly was an easy catch for Goslin. Homer Peel batted for Fitzsimmons. Peel up. Peel singled sharly over Cronin's head. Moore up. Moore rolled to Cronin, who made a bad fumble for an error and all hands were safe with Peel on second and Moore on first. It had looked like an easy douole play. Critz up. Critz rolled to Whitehill, who threw to first as Peel raced to third and Moore reached second on the putout. Terry up. Ball one inside. Strike one. Terry half swung at a curve and missed. Ball two. It was another curve that broke outside. Terry lifted a fly that Sewell caught just in front of the plate. No runs, one hit, one error, two left.

Senators: Herman Bell went to the box for the Giants. Manush up. Manush flied out to Moore who came in for a nice running catch. Cronin up. Cronin grounded sharply to Ryan and was thrown out at first as Terry tagged the Washington manager after being pulled off the base by Ryan's throw. Schulte up. Schute drove a long clout that Davis went back for and caught a few feet in front of the bleacher fence. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NINTH INNING

Giants—Ott up. Ott walked on five pitched balls. Davis up. Davis grounded out on a fast play, Bluege to Kuhel as Ott ran to second. Jackson up. Jackson grounded to Bluege, who juggled the ball but still had plenty of time to make the putout at first. Ott reached third. Mancuso up. Mancuso flied out to Mancuso. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

RELIEF WORK SCHEME URGED

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 5. — Recommendation that an experimental work scheme be inaugurated under supervision of the parks board under which relief recipients would perform a certain amount of work in return for the assistance they receive was made by a committee yesterday. It will be presented to the city council at its next meeting.

An appropriation of $1,000 has already been made to cover extra costs of the scheme.

It is proposed the city set a daily wage for the work and that a relief recipient shall work for his relief allowance for a stipulated number of days on the basis of the daily rate.

ROMAN TEMPLE IN ST. ALBANS

Further Relics Unearthed at Verulamium, Roman City North of London, England

By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 5.—A Roman temple, probably built not long after the time of the Crucifixion, is the latest discovery unearthed on the site of the half-buried city of Verulamium, hard by the pleasant city of St. Albans in Hertfordshire, some twenty miles from London.

The great Cathedral of St. Albans is largely built of bricks taken from the ruins of the Roman city 800 years ago.

For several years past Dr. Mortimer Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler, who have a joint reputation as archaeologists which is world-wide, aided by parties of young university students and others, have spent the greater part of the summer months in bringing to light the relics of Verulamium. Amongst their most important finds have been a tesselated pavement, in almost perfect condition, and a smaller pavement with a chequered pattern unlike any pavement yet brought out of hiding.

One building of which the foundations were laid bare proved clearly to have been an inn—the fireplace was intact and drinking vessels were discovered close by. The skeletons of eight babies were also unearthed, and at another point were discovered the burned bones of oxen and sheep, which it is believed had been sacrificed in the temple.

Unfortunately funds do not permit the continuance of this work of excavation for the present, and at the end of the present month Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler will suspend their operations for an indefinite period.

Quebec Conservative Leader Is Chosen

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 5.—Maurice L. Duplessis yesterday evening officially became leader of the Quebec Conservative Party.

The party convention, in session here, endorsed Duplessis's year and a half of temporary leadership by calling him officially to continue in his post. He defeated Onesime Gragnon, K.C., member of Parliament for Dorchester and the only other candidate for the leadership, the vote being: Duplessis 332, Gagnon 214.

Mr. Duplessis represents Three Rivers in the Legislative Assembly.

HIS FIRST JUDGMENT

Vancouver, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press).—Damages in the sum of $100 and costs have been awarded by Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson in the first trial which he heard following his appointment to the B.C. Supreme Court bench, to Sam Sick Hong, laundry proprietor, Prior Street, against Mah Pon, Columbia Avenue, and Thompson & Binnington Limited, Bailiffs, West Pender, for alleged unlawful seizure last May of the plaintiff's laundry machinery.

De Valera Makes Apology in Dail

Dublin, Irish Free State, Oct. 5. — President Eamon de Valera apologized in the Dail Eireann yesterday for his recent assertion General Richard Mulcahy had had conversations in Glasgow with the British War Minister, Lord Hailsham.

"At Gen. Mulcahy's request," the President said, "I agreed to set up a tribunal to inquire into the matter. Since then the person who gave the information has refused to come forward to give evidence and has, in fact, confessed the information he gave was untrue.

"I regret deeply I should have given publicity to this falsehood, and I tender my apologies to Deputy Mulcahy."

BRITISH STEEL OUTLOOK IMPROVES

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 5.—Cheering business news came yesterday from the United Kingdom's heavy industries, particularly from Sheffield, centre of the steel trade. C. J. Walsh, just installed in the historic office of Master Cutler of Sheffield, reported plants in that city were producing more steel than in pre-war days, and that the monthly output was 7,000 tons more than a year ago. A considerable share of this improvement, Walsh said, was a direct result of the tariff on imported steel. He added Sheffield's newer products, such as magnets, razor blades and stainless steel had made great strides during the year.

The London Iron and Steel Exchange yesterday reported a strong tendency to expansion in the home market, with active conditions ruling in semi-finished steel.

"The Hallelujah Postman" Returns

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 5.—"The Hallelujah Postman," known to Winnipeggers of the early days, has returned, bringing with him vivid accounts of life in the Indian villages of Alaska, where he served the Salvation Army for many years.

He is Staff Captain Joe Acton. Years ago he was a postman here.

Indians of Alaska, he told an audience here yesterday evening, have overcome superstition to such an extent that they are now using awesome totem poles for building churches. In one village totem poles with grotesque faces and figures [illegible] were used for foundation pillars of a church.

SALVATION ARMY APPOINTMENT

Toronto, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press).—Brigadier Joseph Tyndall of the Salvation Army, stationed at London, England, has been appointed financial secretary of the army for Canada, to succeed the late Col. Whafley. Brigadier Tyndall will arrive this month. He was formerly financial secretary for western Canada.

Canada Benefits From New Australian Tariff

Added Preference in Commonwealth Market For Goods From This Country Announced in Budget Speech

Canadian Press

Canberra, Australia, Oct. 5.—Prime [illegible] regular preferential tariff) are: yesterday announced in his budget speech impending tariff changes which will give goods from Canada and the United Kingdom added preference in the Australian market. The added preference, he said, would be effected through reductions in preferential tariff rates and in primate duties charges on empire products.

Proposed reductions in the primage duty (duty charges in addition to the regular preferential tariff) are:

1. From 5 to 10 per cent on all goods entitled to admission under the British preferential tariff.

2. From 5 to 10 per cent on certain selected raw materials of the class contained in goods covered by clause 1.

3. Abolitions of existing primage of 4 per cent from all goods (except newsprint) entitled to admission under the British preferential tariff.

RAW MATERIALS

4. From 4 to 10 per cent on certain raw materials and capital goods entitled to admission under the British preferential tariff.

5. From 4 to 10 per cent on printing papers other than newsprint.

6. Abolition of the 10 per cent primage on Hessian.

7. From 4 to 10 per cent on a small group of miscellaneous group.

Newsprint is excepted from the list in view of the abolition, some time ago, of a special impost of £1 per ton.

Details of proposed reductions in British preferential tariff rates were not realized, but it was pointed out both these and the primage reductions would enable empire goods to enter Australia at lower rates.

In making his announcement on tariffs, the Prime Minister, in his role of Treasurer, said it was not considered desirable at present to apply the primage decreases recommended by the tariff board to foreign imports.

He added it was proposed to incorporate in the Customs Tariff (or Industries Preservation) Act a provision enabling a formula to be applied, when required, to goods from countries whose currencies are depreciated in terms of gold below Australian currency.

In addition to containing announcement of reductions in income and company taxes, the budget showed an excess of receipts over expenditures of £3,547,000 for the year ended June 30, 1933. Total revenue for the period amounted to £79,343,000, while expenditures totaled £69,966,000.

Increases in receipts included: Customs, £5,392,000; sales tax, £1,119,000; income tax, £879,000. Revenues for 1933-34 were estimated by Premier Lyons at £74,020,000, and expenditures at £68,554,000.

The Prime Minister said in view of general economic betterment in the country, the government considered the time had arrived for relieving some of the present tax burdens. The government proposed taxation reductions of £7,490,000 in the hope of stimulating employment, reducing interest and other cost of industry, and lowering the cost of living.

In the income tax category, the company rate would be lowered from 1s 4.8d to 1 shilling in the pound, the personal exertion rate would be reduced 15 per cent, and the special tax on income from property dropped from 10 to 5 per cent.

The changes ease company taxation, abolish the entertainment tax, increase old age pensions and restore some of the cut in public service salaries.

CABLES FOR DETAILS

Ottawa, Oct. 5. — Reduction in primage duties "very satisfactory to Canada" on many exports from this country to Australia was announced in Australia's budget yesterday, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, was informed by cable.

Canadian goods beneficially affected by the decreases in primage duties were not set out in the official advices received, and the minister cabled late yesterday evening to Trade Commissioner Ross at Melbourne asking officially for further details.

The decreases in primage duties were in accord with the Canada-Australia Ottawa Imperial Conference agreement, Mr. Stevens stated.

BRITISH VIEW

London, Oct. 5.—Government circles here to-day believed proposed reduction in Australian import duties, covering both the British preferential rates and primage charged on imports from Empire countries, would give Canada and the United Kingdom, in particular, considerable stronger positions in the Australian market.

Details of the proposed new schedule of preferential rates were lacking, but officials expected they would enable such empire goods as footwear, machinery and clothing to enter Australia with duties and primage of about 38 per cent, while similar goods from foreign countries would be charged about 75 per cent.

In other words, they said, the proposed changes would enable British and Canadian goods to enter Australia at about half the rate charged on foreign imports of similar classes.

TESTIMONY ON BIG PROFITS

U.S. Senate Committee Told of Dillon, Read & Company Stock Transaction

Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 5. — Amid sharp clashes between blunt-spoken Senator Carter Glass of Virginia and Ferdinand Pecora, Counsel, the United States Senate banking committee yesterday heard that partners in Dillon, Read & Company reaped huge profits from pool sales of private stock in an investment trust the company formed.

The stock transactions were brought out by Pecora's questioning of Robert E. Christie Jr., a youthful partner in the banking house, its secretary-treasurer and newly elected president of the American Investment Bankers' Association.

Christie followed Clarence Dillon, the senior partner and president of the private bank to the witness stand. Dillon told the committee he had favored greater publicity on operations of corporations and banks.

COST ONLY TWENTY CENTS

Pecora, pushing his questions determinedly at Christie, brought before the committee testimony that eleven of the partners had sold common stock in the United States and Foreign Securities Corporation at an average of $53 for shares which had cost the partners originally twenty cents each.

Christie said approximately 74,000 shares were disposed of and one block of 2,900 shares which he had bought for $10 each from associates brought an average of slightly more than $50.

Pecora charges the sales formed a pool operation involving a total volume turnover of approximately 130,000 shares in its several months of operation and its shares were allotted to the brokerage house by the partners at a value below stock market quotations at the time.

ALLEGES PLOT TO DISFIGURE

John Warburton, Film Actor, Lays Evidence Before Los Angeles Court

Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 5.—A reported plot to disfigure John Warburton, film actor, so he could no longer appear in motion pictures, was to be considered by the Los Angeles grand jury to-day.

Witnesses subpoenaed included Alice White, featured film actress; Sidney Bartlett, her fiance; Dave Miller, former Chicago boxing referee, and Martin Block and Russell B. Brown, film extras held on robbery charges.

Detective Lieutenants S. S. Stone, Earl Kynette and W. M. Robinson said Block and Brown had signed a statement asserting Bartlett had told them he wished to have Warburton's face disfigured because the English actor had slapped Miss White and purportedly made uncomplimentary remarks about her.

"It's a lot of rot," said Bartlett.

"It's absurd and ridiculous," said Miss White.

The reputed confession said Block and Brown were responsible for the recent attack on Warburton, during which he was robbed of $25.

"Every person in my profession is always open to humiliating and distressing charges," said Miss White, "but this is the most dastardly attack of the kind I have ever heard."

Bartlett said: "I am man enough to fight my own battles."

The Japanese are growing taller. The average height of the men has increased one inch in twenty years and that of the women two inches.

STABILIZATION OF THE U.S. DOLLAR AT EARLY DATE URGED

Leaders Say Business Moving Uncertainly Now in Absence of Declaration of Roosevelt's Intentions

By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 5.—"What is the government going to do about the state of the dollar?"

This question, shouted by Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate's powerful finance committee in a rising voice more suited to a demand, touches a matter troubling United States business and finance to-day.

Reports to Washington picture business moving uncertainly, hampering the recovery drive, because President Roosevelt has kept to himself his intentions on the dollar. Financiers are described as unwilling to undertake long-term commitments until the question mark is dissolved.

Start of the British-United States debt discussions seems likely to bring the matter to a head.

DEBT DISCUSSION

In the event of a substantial British debt payment, Washington observers foresee an increase in the value of the dollar over the pound sterling. Pegging down of the dollar, with the resultant benefit to external trade, has been a part of the Roosevelt recovery movement, so the argument was that currency exchange matters would be to the fore when Sir Frederick Leith-Ross met with United States Treasury and State Department spokesmen to talk debts to-day.

A currency tie-up with Britain, such as is said to be receiving governmental consideration, would seem likely to accompany a stabilization of the United States dollar in terms of gold. It is said the dollar could possibly be given about the same value as now, nearly slightly less than sixty-five cents in terms of the French franc.

When Senator Harrison, leader in President Roosevelt's own Democratic Party, raised the dollar question mark in a New York address yesterday, he also wanted to know:

"What is it (the government) going to do about inflation and reflation?"

Recovery, the blunt-spoken Mississippian said, had been retarded by uncertainty and indirectness on these matters.

FOSSILS SENT TO ONTARIO MUSEUM

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Discovery of an almost complete flesh-eating dinosaur in the "bad lands" of Central Alberta along the banks of the Red Deer River was disclosed here yesterday evening with the arrival of speciments of prehistoric monsters for the Royal Ontario Museum.

The discoveries were made during the summer months by Prof. L. Sternberg of the museum. Finding of the flesh-eating disonaur's bones was declared by museum officials to be of extarordinary importance. The head is almost complete.

In addition to the carnivorous dinosaur, Prof. Sternberg and his helpers shipped a skull of a crested dinosaur, the skull of a horned inosaur and two other speciments of trachodons.

PERU TO HAVE NEW CABINET

Lima, Peru, Oct. 5.—The cabinet of Premier Jorge Prado Ugarteche resigned last midnight, after being in office three months, to allow President Benavides," "freedom in choosing new secretaries," its ideals of peace and freedom having been fulfilled.

SAFETY FIRST

The policy to which the candidates who acknowledge the leadership of Mr. Pattullo are committed, can be, and will be, carried out if the electors give them the opportunity. It is based upon practical experience and its exponents include public men who are familiar with both the conditions under which this province must be governed and those under which the public must live. More than that, it is associated with a leadership whose personnel is known to the electors. It is not a pig-in-the-poke, consisting of provisions which have no application to provincial affairs, which can not possibly be carried out under the constitution of the Dominion—a constitution, by the way, which can not be altered without the approval of the eight other provinces of Canada. Still further, and even more important, the Liberals have a strong, resolute leader of many years' experience in public life and office, in Mr. Pattullo, to whom no special interest can dictate. In this case the electors know who will form their government and what that government can, and will, do.

Outstanding in the platform which Mr. Pattullo pledges himself resolutely to carry out, is a plank providing for substituting for the present iniquitous dole system a programme of constructive works designed to promote employment by provincial development. It is proposed to set up an economic council representing all sections of the public to correlate efforts to advance the welfare of British Columbia socially and industrially. It favors unemployment insurance on a national basis, and state health insurance. It provides for the establishment of a public utilities commission, a highway commission, the maintenance of the social services which the Liberals created when they were in office, and the complete readjustment of the taxation structure in such a way as to remove the tax burdens from those least able to bear them.

The electors in this election are confronted with two main alternatives. On one hand there is a confusion of parties, mostly leaderless, all of them with platforms, some of which are beyond the powers of any government in this province to carry out and which would not even be started if their advocates were in office. On the other hand is a party under a known and experienced leader capable of forming a government at any time which will give a definite, orderly administration and preserve that provincial credit without the maintenance of which our whole economic structure will be hopelessly impaired and unemployment largely increased.

The Times has frequently pointed out that the electors are responsible for their own conditions in a political sense. They can have either confusion and uncertainty or stable, orderly government. But we should all bear in mind that if we take a leap into the dark we shall have no persons but ourselves to blame if we find ourselves severely damaged. Choosing a Legislature is nothing to be done lightly, since the consequences of that choice recoil upon the public immediately. It always pays to adopt an attitude of Safety First, and a little reflection based upon a brief study of all the circumstances should lead to the conclusion that in this respect Mr. Pattullo and his supporters provide the best assurance.

SIXTY-ONE TO FIVE

Sixty-six daily and weekly newspapers between Victoria and Halifax have discussed The Toronto Globe's exposures of the "system" in effect at Kingston penitentiary. Sixty-one of these publications, including The Times, have applauded its demand for a full investigation into the various phases of penitentiary life as disclosed in a series of articles written by Dr. O. C. J. Withrow. Five are classed as against reform. They are thus listed: The Mail and Empire of Toronto, The Ottawa Journal, The Toronto Evening Telegram, The Kingston Whig-Standard, and The London Free Press. In justice to the last two of the five, The Globe explains, it should be said that at the inception of the campaign for prison reform they were in sympathy with the movement, but, for some reason, became "sensible" only as demands on the government grew more insistent.

Commenting on the attitude of the five, The Globe says: "They are five. They are also sensible. They say so." It then goes on as follows: "If the saying be true, then they are the only sensible newspapers in Canada. For they are the only newspapers attempting to sneer down all demands for investigation and reform of the Canadian prison system.

"Against them, from Halifax to Victoria, are already ranged sixty-one daily and weekly newspapers asking—and continuing to ask—for investigation and reform. Roused by revelations begun at the Kingston riot trials, sixty-one Canadian journals have declared for thorough, immediate and impartial inquiry into the abuses of this country's prison system. But the sixty-one are sentimentalists, sufferers from hysteria, sob-sisters." We read further in The Globe:

> If hysteria be the only possible source of indignation against a system that strangles all sense of human justice in its victims, its servants and its apologists alike, then The Globe has hysterics. So has the Criminology Committee of the Social Service Council of Canada. So has the Council for Social Service of the Church of England in Canada. So have the Brantford Trades and Labor Council, the Toronto and District Command, Canadian Legion, the Port Arthur City Council, the Stratford City Council, the Hamilton Council of Churches, more than a dozen Ontario Presbyterian Churches of the United and Presbyterian Churches, and many other organized bodies of clergy and laymen throughout Ontario. They all have hysterics, for they have all publicly demanded a searching and impartial investigation and a thorough reform of this country's prison system.

The Globe has a good deal of journalistic company which naturally wants to know why the Minister of Justice at Ottawa does not order a complete inquiry at once. If there is nothing of which to be afraid there should be no hesitancy in clearing the air. If there is anything wrong, or if all or even half of the revelations made by Dr. Withrow can be substantiated before an impartial investigating body, the public also has a right to know, and it is the duty of the government to set matters right in the obvious way.

Nobody favors coddling the criminal; but no sane person would consent to the employment of a system that is out-and-out punitive, which literally condemns a man who has made his first mistake to a life of crime. Punishment is necessary, so is reformation. Sixty-one Canadian journals share this view.

TOO LATE, MR. JONES

Speaking in Kelowna on Monday evening, Hon. J. W. Jones, still Minister of Finance in the Tolmie government and a candidate in opposition to that government in the forthcoming general election, is reported to have made the following statement:

> We must not permit unemployment to go ahead year after year as it has in the past. We must have a contributory unemployment insurance, and I am going to propose a state health insurance for those whose incomes amount to less than $2,400 a year. We must have a definite land policy so that our settlers keep together and are not allowed to go far away from roads and schools. We must have a highway commission so that our highways are taken out of politics and free from party patronage. We will soon be able to reduce taxation and I do not believe in future increases. I shall try to bring in further reductions.

At the end of this month Mr. Jones will be able to celebrate, with as much enthusiasm as he may be able to arouse within himself, the third anniversary of his elevation from the Speakership of the Legislature to the important position of Minister of Finance. What the people of the province naturally would like to know is why he did not advocate measures that would at least have considerably alleviated unemployment, why he did not propose a contributory unemployment insurance plan, why he did not outline his idea of a "definite" land policy, why he did not bring pressure to bear on his colleagues and persuade them that it was the government's duty to establish a highway commission, why he did not reduce taxation instead of, for example, trotting out such an absurd additional tax as the meal tax—why he did not demand the policy outlined at Kelowna on Monday at one of the three sessions in which he sat in the Legislature as Minister of Finance in a government able to command a majority of three to one.

Mr. Jones' policy, of course, is the policy of which the forces led by Mr. Pattullo are in favor, and which they will be able to adopt because the Liberal party is the only party with a leader and a definite programme.

WRONG AND RIGHT

British Columbia's Agent-General in London is kept busy writing letters to the newspapers correcting misconceptions of this province and its industrial and other commercial activities. For example, here is part of a communication he sent to The Investors' Chronicle and Money Market Review recently:

> In the joint paper on the possibilities of increasing the gold production of Canada submitted to the Geology Section of the British Association by Mr. H. C. Cooke and Mr. W. A. Johnstone, the authors state that in the case of Columbia (by which, of course, they mean British Columbia) it is unlikely that, unless new discoveries are made in the near future, the output would increase notably in the next few years.

The people of Canada in general and of British Columbia in particular know enough about the gold mining activity which is now going on to realize how far off the mark the two gentlemen of the joint paper are. That British Columbia should be called Columbia is not especially surprising. Supposedly up-to-date journals in Great Britain have yet to learn the word Dominions. The "colonies"—all-embracing—still goes as an expression in current news and fiction.

However, The Financial News, the London financial journal with the largest circulation in the empire, obviously knows something about gold production in British Columbia. In its issue of September 18, it devoted more than half a column to a discussion of the "rising output" and the "rush to register new companies." Here is part of its article:

"One of the bright spots in the mineral productions of British Columbia at the present time is gold. Renewed activities in gold mining commenced over a year ago, and now at least 1,000 more men are employed than was the case twelve months previously.

"During the first six months of 1933 gold production showed an increase in placers and lode, the combined gold figures totaling $2,292,946, as compared with $1,881,137 in the comparative period, an increase of twenty-two percent. This is estimated with gold at the standard price, but a substantial premium, averaging about twenty-one per cent, and worth approximately $480,000, was also enjoyed by gold producers."

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

VILLAGE BLACKSMITH'S NEW ART
The London Daily Telegraph

The renewed popularity of hand-made painted ironwork has already saved many a village smithy from being closed down. Formerly all such ironwork reached us from the Continent. Now screens, lamps and wall decorations—rivaling the best French and Italian in workmanship—are being made by village blacksmiths in Devonshire, Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire, under the guidance of English artists.

KILLING THE GOOSE IN GASPE
The Le Soleil, Quebec

One of the little industries of Gaspe at the present time consists of sowing the road with nails. It is a grain which becomes ripe in the garages, in the form of burst tires and flats. The sowers forget that for the sake of an immediate profit, they are chasing away the tourists, are giving their own country a bad reputation, and depriving themselves of a valuable revenue for the future. The owners of garages should mend their ways if they are at the bottom of this dishonorable practice. A day will come when every motorist will equip himself with all the necessary gadgets to repair his own punctured tires on the road.

A THOUGHT

Amend your ways and your doings.—Jeremiah vii 3.

To err is human; but contrition felt for the crime distinguishes the virtuous from the wicked.—Alfieri.

Loose Ends

Mr. Pooley and his critics both get mixed up—the Professor is a bit upside-down, too—the ant is debunked at last—and we farmers cling to the soil.

By H. B. W.

LOYALTY

ATTORNEY-GENERAL POOLEY seems to have raised a question close to the hearts of the multitude and more interesting than the grisly spectacle of provincial finance when he accused the country at large of disloyalty to Premier Tolmie. I see editorials about it in most of the newspapers and numerous speeches by candidates. And there is a great confusion over a matter that is very simple.

Broadly, both sides of the argument are wrong, which is often the case in politics. Mr. Pooley is wrong in accusing the country at large of disloyalty to the Premier. The country has no obligation of loyalty to the Premier or to any politician or any party or any government. It has only one obligation—that is the obligation to elect the best government it can find and to kick out any government it considers incompetent. Its obligation is only to itself. There is nothing personal about it and loyalty to a man, of course, is purely a personal matter. Once you start to govern a country on the basis of personal loyalty to a man, you either have efficient government under a ruthless dictatorship, as in Germany and Italy, or you have utter democratic confusion under an incompetent.

But Mr. Pooley is right and the other side is wrong when he demands personal loyalty to the Premier among his sworn friends and associates in the game of politics. That is a personal matter between men, and Mr. Pooley's only mistake is in imagining that the public is involved in it, that you and I, for example, have any obligation to the government, its leader or its policies. Men who are in a government or a group have a constitutional duty to support it which is fundamental in our system, although it has lately been thrown to the winds. But there is something more, a code of honor which Mr. Pooley at the moment is fulfilling rather superbly. That is the only point where loyalty and honor enter the picture.

This is not to say that a man on entering a government or party has no right to quit if he is dissatisfied with its work. On the contrary, it is his solemn duty to quit right away. What Mr. Pooley seems to be getting at in his vague and confusing fashion is this: that a man has no right to pretend loyalty to a leader while secretly hostile, or to get out merely to save his own skin. But that is a matter between the men themselves. The public's only job is to get the best government it can, heaven help it.

RELATIVE

PROFESSOR EINSTEIN seems to be more logical in his studies of the remote stars than in his recent ventures into worldly affairs. A while ago the good professor urged men of all countries to become conscientious objectors, to refuse to go to war and thus make war impossible. The same notion has been late taken up in England among the young men of the universities, who have observed that victory in modern wars is just about as disastrous as defeat and that the next real war will probably blow up what little remains of civilization. But now Professor Einstein has written another encyclical blast of wisdom and has told the men of France and Belgium that it is their duty to train themselves for war, in order to combat Hitlerism, the common enemy of all.

This is evidently relativity applied to higher politics and the human conscience. The professor's idea apparently is that it is ethical and right for a man to refuse to fight against a good enemy; but if the enemy is bad, in the opinion of the government, or the professor, then the man must be made to fight.

The good professor, the world's Number One conscientious objector, has thus taken the conscience out of objection altogether; for if anyone but the objector himself is to decide what is right and what is wrong, it ceases to be a matter of morality with him altogether. It becomes a matter of practical national expediency, as it has always been, and in such emergencies the moralities of individual men, the rules of religion, the beliefs of Christianity and all such things are completely lost in the rush. Those who insist on practising them are duly ostracized, conscripted, put in jail or shot, according to the customs of the country.

It may be all right for the professor to bend light around a curve and prove that the universe is all cock-eyed and back-to-front, but once he starts monkeying with logic and ethics he gets into deeper water, where his formulae and measurements won't work. After one burst of pure ethics, he now proposes to apply practical considerations to war, and perhaps he is right. In the same way the world has applied practical considerations to his theory of Relativity, has adopted the convention that two and two actually do make four and gets along quite well, even though it is perfectly obvious to the professor that two and two make something else entirely. After this, unless he is prepared to stand by his ethical guns, he ought to stick to the universe and let the world disintegrate in its own way.

THE ANT

SOME OTHER scientific Johnnies have lately added to the general confusion of the times by debunking the Ant. One can witness the debunking of the universe by fellows like Einstein with composure. I mean, no man stops buying worthless mining stocks or beating his wife merely because the universe is found to be expanding and running down at break-neck speed. No one argues with his banker about interest rates because it is found that two and two don't make four.

But the Ant is different. The Ant for ages has been a comforting thing, and in our times of economic chaos a sort of sheet anchor, the picture of the perfect economic animal, the ideal which we should strive for. Solomon and others have remarked on the matter frequently and urged men to follow the Ant and be wise. Now a fellow gets up before the British Society and tells the sordid truth about the Ant.

Alas, he is not the perfect economic animal we had supposed. On the contrary, he operates in direct hostility to all the best theories of economics. He employs child labor. He uses slaves who work for nothing. He captures other tribes of Ants and uses them in chain gangs. His prosperity is not spread to the community as we had supposed. He has never solved the problem of distribution. On the contrary, he is always piling up a surplus just as we are. Indeed, if we followed Solomon's advice and went to the Ant seeking wisdom, we should be worse off than ever. According to his plan of uncontrolled working hours and unlimited production, we should soon be utterly lost in our superfluity of goods and we should have working conditions worse than those in the lowest sweatshops of the slums. One more idol is gone, one more inspiration, and there seems to be no economic perfection left in the universe. Still, it is comforting in a way. I mean it is something to find that, low as we are, we are no lower in the scale of created things than the crawling Ant.

FARMERS

THE C.C.F., as evidenced by its recent convention here, is a bit sceptical of the instinctive socialism of the Canadian farmer. I should think it would be. No farmer is a socialist, though many are supporting the C.C.F. The farmer, on the contrary, is about the only surviving individualist in a world of human robots. He may shout for socialism sometimes and vote for it, but still he is not a socialist. If he becomes a socialist he is no longer a farmer. He may be a man who tills the soil and grows turnips, but that is not necessarily a farmer.

This is not to say that socialism may never be applied to agriculture. Perhaps it may, but if and when agriculture is socialized, it will cease to be farming. It will be the scientific and efficient management of the land to produce a maximum of crops for a minimum of effort. The land will cease to be a farm; it will be a facotry. Perhaps it will be easier and more profitable for all concerned, at least in theory, but farming in the true and historic sense will have gone out of it altogether. For farming in the true sense has very little to do with efficient management and profitable operation. Farming is not an industry, but a religion, a state of mind.

Men don't stay on the land to make money, because most of them are not crazy. They stay on the land because on it they find, with its grinding labor and small profits, a freedom from control, a spaciousness, a sense of mastery over their own lives that you cannot find when you are working for someone else. When agriculture is socialized, that intangible thing which has been the strength of nations and of civilizations from the earliest times, will go out of it. Your farmer, instead of being the last surviving free man will become a hired help like the rest of us.

Of course, the C.C.F. does not propost to socialize agriculture, but in this arrangement the C.C.F. farmer is in a peculiar position—he is willing to socialize us for our own good, but he won't allow himself to be socialized; or if he will allow himself, then indeed is the march of the machine complete, and the ancient soul of race utterly dead. The real fact, of course, is that socialism must ultimately be an industrial movement based on the demands of working men for a fair distribution of wealth. Based on farmers, it is going to have a lot of trouble before it is finished, for your farmer clings to his land like a child to its mother. When he stops doing that, then he may become a socialist and a scientific producer of food. He won't be a farmer, such as I am.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SUCH AS I HAVE

The poet quotes: "Silver and gold have I none;
But such as I have I will give unto you,"
And he shows men the sunrise and setting sun
And the April sky with its rain-washed blue.
He lifts up the veils from their listless eyes
To give them the glamor of sea and shore,
He opens their ears to the four winds' sighs
And to sirens' songs through the breakers' roar.

"Of such as I have I will give," cries he,
And he teaches the goodness which dwells unguessed
The spark divine which few eyes can see
That is glowing deep in the human breast.
Of patience and sacrifice he writes,
Of the long endeavor, the starry goal,
Until in the end his message lights
An answering gleam in each listening soul.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
October 5, 1908
(From The Times Files)

Ralph Smith held a grand rally in Nanaimo on Saturday night, thus closing a most successful week's campaign, beginning in the vicinity of Victoria and extending throughout the length of the constituency.

* * *

But one good bag brought in by the week-enders from the hunting grounds has been reported this morning, that being obtained by T. P. McConnell and comprising thirty brace of willow grouse obtained around Cowichan during the last three days.

* * *

The 1908 season of the Northwestern Baseball League was officially closed in Vancouver Saturday with a double header between the Spokane and Vancouver teams, the Beavers celebrating the event by handing the Indians the first game by a score of four to two, and then walloping them in the second combat to the tune of seven to nothing.

* * *

There was lying in the harbor this morning, opposite the causeway, one of the finest launches that ever came to Victoria. This is the Xenial of Seattle, owned by Morris A. Davis, of Seattle.

* * *

Mr. Roy Troupe went north this morning with the little stern-wheeler Craigflower. She was loaded on a barge at the Star marine ways and towed by the steamer Maude. It is understood that Mr. Troup is taking the Craigflower to the Skeena River where he will operate the stern-wheeler himself.

* * *

The new wing of St. Joseph's Hospital opened on Saturday afternoon in the presence of a large attendance of citizens and creeds. The brief ceremonies were followed by a reception, during which the whole of the new building was open to inspection.

AUTHENTIC

To the Editor:—In view of the conflicting statements in Tuesday's Times from Mr. Miller, secretary of the Victoria District Council, and the letter from Mr. Mitchell of Esquimalt in the same issue, concerning the information I gave you about the C.C.F. candidate for Esquimalt, I beg to advise you the information I gave you then was perfectly correct and authentic.

If the above gentlemen care to dispute this letter, I will supply The Times with an account of the whole affair, in which I can easily prove what I say.

UNFAIR

To the Editor:—It is hardly just to charge a Chinese $500 for the benefits of living in British Columbia and then use the power of the government to prevent him getting a living.

If we were shortsighted enough to let him come in, even if he had paid nothing, we are under a moral obligation to allow him to live, but when we have charged for the privilege our obligation is doubled.

If we want to see the Chinese return to their native country, and no doubt many would like to go, why not refund them a portion of the tax paid? It could be worked out on an average span of life and consideration to the age of the person when he is and the time he has been in country. Insurance companies give a lot of useful information in respect.

CELEBRITIES ARRIVE FROM EUROPE

Returning from abroad the other day were: Guglielmo Marconi, famed Italian wireless inventor, and his beautiful wife. This photo was taken on their arrival in New York, en route to the Chicago Exposition, to attend "Marconi Day." To the right is Rosa Ponselle, who might be described as a deep-sea diva, returning from Europe after one of her many crossings.

LOCAL ATHLETE IS BRIDEGROOM

Randolph W. Tervo Wed to Miss Elsie Canavan in Vancouver

Of much interest to the many Victoria friends of the bridegroom is the quiet wedding which took place at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Vancouver, yesterday evening when Rev. Miss G. W. Beall Chairman of C.G.I.T. Leaders; Encouraging Reports Given

The annual meeting of the Girls' Leaders' Council was held at the Y.W.C.A. on Tuesday evening, with a record attendance—over forty leaders representing about twenty churches of the United Churches, the Baptist, Presbyterian, Anglican and City Temple denominations, being present. A jolly sing-song opened the meeting, after which the roll-call and reports were given.

Especially fine reports were given by Miss L. Parfitt, sponsor of the Girls' Council, of the work done during the past year by the council. Mrs. Freeman, director of the camp held last summer at Sooke, rendered a short but interesting report of the camp. Greetings were extended by Miss Blackley, the new Y.W.C.A. secretary, in reply to an expression of appreciative thanks by the chairman, on behalf of the Leaders' Council, for the courtesy and kindness of the Y.W.C.A. in allowing the council to hold their meetings there.

THANK-OFFERING MEETING HELD

Mrs. A. L. Young presided at the thank-offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Victoria West United Church on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Beattie. Opening by the "Doxology" and "The Lord's Prayer" in unison, there followed reading of a "Psalm" and prayer by the president.

Miss M. Beattie spoke regarding the missionary monthly. Mrs. George Guy reported on collections for annual life membership. Mrs. Rees and Mrs. Young gave an interesting account of visiting returning missionaries to the Orient on the recent call here of Ss. Empress of Japan. Mrs. Holder spoke of visiting the sick.

Mrs. Perry for Christian Stewardship brought a helpful article on the practical benefit of tithing. During collection of the thank offering, two of the six members present of the Young Women's Circle, Jean Robinson and Frances Jenkins, sang "I Gave My Life for Thee," accompanied by Lillian Painter. The dedicatory prayer was given by Mrs. Guy. Rev. W. R. Brown, newly-appointed pastor to the church, was then introduced by Mrs. Young as the evening's speaker. None could soon forget the lesson contained in the story told of early missionary effort among the natives of the New Hebrides.

Mrs. Rees expressed the thanks of the meeting to Mr. Brown, the hostesses and the girls for their music. The closing hymn "We Give Thee but Thine Own" and "Mizpah Benediction." Refreshments and a happy social time followed, which was enjoyed by all.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

CHILD'S SCHOOL SITUATION MAY NEED ADJUSTMENT

Not infrequently the parent does her child the greatest injustice when she furnishes him a ready excuse for poor schoolwork. "The trouble is that you won't concentrate," she tells him. His refusal to concentrate is one of those blanket excuses under which the mother hides her own disappointment and the child's deficiencies.

WHY?

We appreciate the parent's emotions, but we are concerned first with the child. The ability to concentrate is not a faculty one can possess for the asking. It is a sign of interest. Interest is hitched to intelligence and understanding. How much better to say, "The child can't concentrate" instead of the "won't," and start from that point.

Why can't he concentrate? Has he good eyesight, sharp hearing? Is he within shooting distance of normal weight? Does he arrive at school fresh and unfatigued? These are the tools which carve out interest; and if the child is suffering none of the handicaps which would, confirm such a sense organs or malnutrition or fatigue, we must look further.

Let us admit that all children cannot do the highest grade of schoolwork, no matter how hard they try. If they are well and happy and rested, most children can do an average grade of school work. If they cannot, then it were better to fit them either into an ungraded room or furnish them physical tasks hich they can accomwplish.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

No child can go through life constantly failing at what he does. No matter how he may hide his bitterness, success is necessary to life. When we feel sure that a child cannot succeed in doing purely mental work, we must find some other outlet for his energies and some other form of work in which he can shine. Physical activities may be such a boy's meat and drink, and he should be able to enjoy them.

The problem of the failing child is cimplicated by the parents, refusal to accept the school's evaluation of her child. She looks upon each teacher as an enemy. "She has it in for my boy," is a common expression of this suspicion. Because of this, the parent seldom goes to the school with her problem. She hopes that by her help at home she may secretly pull the child up to the desired level.

First make certain that he is given all the aids to good scholarship contributed by good health and keen sense organs. Then if the school work is markedly low, admit the child's deficiencies. Move him to a grade in which he can succeed, or take him out of graded work entirely. To say, "Oh, he's smart, but he jus twon' tconcentrate," is to mark the end of the road. Beyond that statement there is no vision.

Nervous diseases are much more prevalent among brain workers than among others.

No Need to Fear Motherhood

MOTHERHOOD — the crowning joy of every woman's life—is the most beautiful experience life offers.

There is no need to approach motherhood with fear and dread. The period in a woman's life just before her child is born need not be a time of illness and anxiety.

At such a time a women needs all her strength. It is essential that she must keep in good health and good spirits. She should guard her health for the sacred and wounderful experience that is to be hers.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does away with worry during pregnancy. It builds up the woman's system, giving her the proper mental outlook and physical well-being that will insure her safety later on.

This medicine nourishes the nervous system and strengthen the body of the expectant mother, which means, of course, that it is also strengthening the baby that is on the way.

At this time, more than any other time in a woman's life, her health is all-important. This tried and true prescription can be purchased at any drug store in either fluid or tablets.

Read what Mrs. A. W. Ferguson of 8 Wilson Ave., London, Ont., says: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was of great help to me during expectancy. I could not keep food on my stomach, felt generally nervous and depressed, but the 'Favorite Prescription' corrected all this and brought me through this period in good health.

My baby was unusually strong and healthy, and I give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the credit due it. The 'Prescription' has helped my daughter also for that tired, nervous, weakened condition.

Young women need not continue to suffer every month if they will take this Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce's they will find periodic pains are overcome.

HONOR MOTHER OF NEW PRIEST

Catholic Women's League Presents Silver Basket to Mrs. Geo. Roberts

Yesterday evening at the close of the business session of the Victoria subdivision, Catholic Women's League, Mrs. George Roberts, mother of Father Roland Roberts, lately ordained priest, was honored by the membership with an address and a gift of a silver flower basket with red carnations and maidenhair fern. Mrs. W. C. McManus, president, offered the congratulations of the assembled associates, and their appreciation of the unfailing devotion of Mrs. Roberts in all the activities of the league during a long term of years, when her quiet efficiency has been an inspiration to all who have shared the same interests. Mrs. McManus in conclusion read a poem by Marcellus Foltz, entitled "Prayer of a Mother on Her Son's Ordination." Mrs. Roberts acknowledged with gratitude the gift and the charmingly expressed sentiments of the president, and of the poet.

Rev. Father Albury, chaplain of the subdivision, was present for the opening of the meeting, and spoke briefly upon hospital visiting, as well as upon the objects of the Dramatic Club now being organized by the young people of St. Andrew's Cathedral parish, and for which in its cultural, educational and social values the interest and encouragement of the Catholic Women's League has been solicited. Any wishing to join may communicate with Miss Kathleen Nesbit, Pendergast Street.

Delegates were appointed in the persons of Mrs. Scaling and Mrs. Kennedy, to attend the annual meeting of the Women's Workroom, and a donation to the funds of the workroom was voted.

Mrs. O'Neill, corresponding secretary, read an invitation from the ladies of North Saanich to attend a military five hundred and social on Tuesday evening, October 24, in Stacey's Hall. Mrs. McManus announced that the subdivision would be responsible for the corner at Kresge's during the tag day for Queen Alexandra Solarium on October 14.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Cavin, was also heard, and a new member, Mr. Coleman, was welcomed to the meeting. Mrs. G. Fraser reported for hospital visiting at St. Joseph's and the Women's Home, and Mrs. O'Brien was appointed visitor for the coming month.

The annual diocesan convention of the Catholic Women's League will be held in the church hall of Our Lady Queen of Peace on October 25, Wednesday. The sessions will be at 2.30 in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening. Supper will be served by Esquimalt subdivision for those wishing to remain, and who are asked to communicate with Mrs. Duncan, diocesan president, at their earliest convenience.

Mrs. Blair Reid brought a message from the Local Council concerning the advisibility of the early framing of any resolutions to be presented to the council this year.

It was decided to hold in the parish hall on Wednesday next the social for members, which was unavoidable postponed, and Mrs. de Blaquiere will be hostess for the evening. An afternoon and evening card party for funds will also be held at a date to be announced. The annual bazaar dates were finally determined and will be December 4, 5 and 6, afternoon and evening. The various stall holders and committees were named and general discussion followed.

A vote of sympathy to the family of the late Dan O'Sullivan was unanimously passed, and a letter expressing the appreciation of his useful life in the community to be sent. The illness of Mrs. McLernan, secretary, was referred to with sympathy, and messages were sent her from the meeting.

In the report on education it was noted that two of the students of St. Ann's Academy, Kathleen Down and Lily Conroy, had won two first and two second prizes for poster designs in the Provincial Exhibition at the Willows, last month.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served and a pleasant hour spent.

TELLS OF STRIFE IN MANCHURIA

Inherent Weakness of China to Blame, Says Mme Vivenot

Declaring that the whole Manchurian question hinged on the inherent weakness of China, Mme. A. B. Vivenot gave a scholarly review of conditions in Manchuria before the Overseas League at its meeting Tuesday in Spencer's dining-room.

Long a resident of the country, the speaker described the bandit-ridden, sparsely populated territory, where foreigners received no protection from the Nanking government, because China was torn by internal strife by warring army generals gratifying personal ambition.

Mme. Vivenot recalled that prior to 1909, both Russia and Japan coveted Manchuria. In order to gain a footing in Manchuria, Russia decided on an invasion of Japan. In the war that followed, China proved herself a friend of Russia. By the treaty with China that followed, Japan undertook the development of Manchuria and established law and order. Chinese swarmed in as a result of this new government, for life in China was insecure.

After the close of the Great War, Russian Communists instigated a wholesale persecution and murder of Japanese in China. Boycotting of Japanese goods followed, and finally Japanese officers on diplomatic services were murdered. While they declared it to be banditry ravagings, the Chinese Government troops several times tore up the South Manchurian Railway. "These actions, which the Chinese Government refused to take the responsibility for, and from which they offered no protection, laid the way for the final trouble, as we know it to-day," the speaker said.

Intervention on the part of the foreign powers is not welcomed by these two countries of the Orient, Madame Vivenot stated. Although there is a tremendous hatred on the surface between them, the Chinese have nevertheless, the greatest regard for their Japanese cousins. China sees in Japan what can be accomplished by herself in future years.

TEA WILL MARK ANIMALS' DAY

Anti-vivisection Society to Hold Silver Tea Saturday; Prize Distribution

The local Anti-Vivisection Society will hold its customary celebration of World Day for Animals by a silver tea at New Thought Hall, Fort Street, on Saturday, from 3.30 to 5.30.

Five years ago the proposal to set aside this season for the welfare of animals, in commemoration of St. Francis of Assisi, their friend, was first started in England. The local society being asked to co-operate, immediately founded the movement in Victoria with marked success. Each year sees a larger sympathy for the cause. The society's silver tea has become a popular function, and will be fully in accord with its former successes.

Miss N. Wyles and Mr. Landman will have charge of the superfluities, some really delightful contributions having been sent for the purpose. Candy will be sold by Mrs. and Miss Skilton, while tea features will be in charge of, by courtesy of Mrs. H. Attfield; her pupils are contributing the programme: String ensemble; mandolins, banjo, guitar and 'cello, Mme. Attfield Minnie Lane, Grace Attfield, Annie Provan, Lona M. Attfield, Albert Marshall and Evelyn Holt; piano, banjo solo, Grace Attfield; French dance, Muriel Marshall; tap dance, Betsy Newcomb and Lona-Marie Attfield.

The children who were winners in the society's competition, "Our Duty to Animals," will be guests of the members at tea, after the distribution of the prizes, those being invited are: Phyllis Beschizza, Walter Driver, Vera Knight, Barbara Willerton, Eleanor Woodward, Thelma Ashdown, Neville Cull. Some contestants having tied, extra prizes are being awarded. The distribution will be made by Mayor Leeming.

The slogan for World Day is "Think—Speak—Act," and the occasion gives everyone a unique opportunity to carry out these ideals. Donations may be sent to Miss Dora Kitto, 315 Sayward Building.

PAMPERED PET POODLE DIES

Late Multi-millionaire's Dog Succumbs to Too Much Luxury

New York, Oct. 5.—Too much of a good thing has done for Toby, pet poodle of the late Ella von E. Wendel.

Toby, whose playground was an expensive piece of Fifth Avenue real estate, whose bed was a silken pillow, had grown too fat and showed a tendency to snap at the hands that fed it.

A veterinary ended Toby's days, and the dog was buried in Irvington, N.Y., in accordance with Miss Wendel's expressed wish that it lie "with his predecessors."

Miss Wendel, whose multi-million-dollar estate has been the cause of much litigation, once was reported to have refused a fancy price for a vacant space next to her Fifth Avenue home that Toby might have a place to frolic.

Hamilton Mayor Learns a Lesson

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 5.—A small, irate woman "gate crashed" the office of Mayor John Peebles. She had a tax bill she couldn't understand and Mayor Peebles was asked to explain it.

Two long hours later the mayor came out of his office and said: "I've learned my lesson. I'll never try to explain a tax bill again."

PIANO-VIOLIN RECITAL FINE

Viola Wasterlain and John Hopper Enthusiastically Welcomed Yesterday Evening

Musical Arts Season Opens With Eclat at Shrine Hall

By G. J. D.

Whenever Viola Wasterlain, violinist, and John Hopper, pianist, appear in recital there is sure to be found a happy evening spent in the art of music. Once more was this demonstrated (no less than three times have they now visited our concert platforms in their youthful music careers) on the occasion of the opening concert of the winter programme arranged and sponsored by the Victoria Musical Art Society, when these gifted soloists were heard yesterday evening at the Shrine Auditorium.

When each of the recitalists came forward, Miss Wasterlain and Mr. Hopper, in turn, received unmistakable evidences of the audience's anticipatory pleasure, which neither spared their applause or enthusiasm.

Even greater things may be said of both of these superlative musicians, than on their previous concert appearances, and in all they so well accomplished were even a greater technique—and technique these days is a sine qua non—a deeper sympathy with their art, a finer quality of performance, and above all do they seem to delight in what they themselves are doing that the infection spreads to their hearers, and again last evening was each soloist brought several times to the platform.

MISS WASTERLAIN

More than ever are we convinced of Viola Wasterlain's violinistic accomplishment. She no longer delays her entry among the violinists of the present day, she has entered the firmament of first rank violinists. Her playing of the famous "test," the Bach "Chaconne," from IVth Sonata (unaccompanied), the magnificent Bach "Praeludium" in E major, the sweetness and beauty of her rendering of the Chopin "Nocturne," op. 27, No. 2, and the brilliant "Airs Russes," by Wieniawski - Kreisler, where dwell wonders of tone, double stopping, trills, double harmonics, etc., were all hers to command, and all finely achieved. For her encores she selected an arrangement of a Brahm's waltz by Gordon of the Gordon String Quartette, and a typically rhythmic "Tango" by Albeniz.

JOHN HOPPER

As a pianist John Hopper may rest assured of his high rank among all western pianists. His musicianship is unquestioned, and quite well is it in evidence how perfectly is he aware that there are two things in a performance, by a first-rank musician and interpreter. One is the composition itself, and the other the interpretation, and where any of the masterpieces are concerned this interpretive law is never fixed. Combining this thought with his poetic and sensitive temperament, John Hopper can open the doors of pianism widely, invitingly and soundly.

His first number, Cesar Frank's Prelude - Choral - Fugue, constantly constantly conveyed throughout the impression if only this could be heard on the pipe organ, and one's thoughts went back to Bonnet, Dupre, Courboinx. Nevertheless, the master's hands were at work in Hopper's delineation of composer and interpretation, and it was altogether a splendid pianistic achievement. So also was his conception of Moussorgsky-Bauer's "The City Gates," with its picture of sentinels, clash and clang, and clamor at the gates of an ancient Eastern city, all portrayed in an outstanding achievement.

Ravel's "Piece—en forme de Habanera" was exquisite in its varied colorings, and the modernistic Scriabine was represented in two Etudes, Nos. 8 and 5, played with secure, subtle grace of phrasing, strong musical conception and clarity. Mr. Hopper, too, was compelled to add two extra numbers, selecting Palmgren's "En Route" and Debussy's "Girl With the Flaxen Hair."

Miss Wasterlain was blessed with an admirable associate as accompanist in Alice Spencer Weiss, who lifted the art of accompaniment into some rare altitudes of distinguished piano playing.

In some opening remarks by Mrs. W. A. Jameson, president of the society, who welcomed the members and guests present, she said in their fourth season she knew there would still be displayed that musical fellowship as in past seasons, and that as in past programmes there would be that standard always sought. She hoped the society would grow not only numerically but artistically. Mrs. Jameson announced that the scholarship fund for local distribution was growing, and took the opportunity of again thanking all local artists who had assisted the society in previous years.

SALADA TEA

The Shining Talent

By ELEANOR EARLY

(Copyright, 1929, by NEA Service Inc.)

"Well," she said, "I'm not so young as I used to be. And I don't think I'm charming at all. I haven't any particular friends—just Red, and you—and Mr. Durbin, maybe. And I haven't any lover at all. Of course I adore Rita. But, after all, she's not mine. As for my beautiful home—why, it's nothing in the world but a rented flat! I don't own a stick of furniture in it. To have a home, Bob—a really, truly home—you have to have love, I guess . . ."

"Why don't you get married?" he interrupted.

"And who," she asked, "wants to marry me?"

It was a tactless question, born of a moment's bantering. As soon as the words were out of her mouth, Molly regretted them.

Bob was standing now by Rita's crib looking not at Molly at all, but at the mad March hare.

"I do," he said, and raised his eyes to hers.

"Why, Bob!" she quavered.

"It isn't," he admitted, "an exclusive desire on my part. There are plenty of men who would like to marry you. You'd be a rarely lovely wife, my dear. You are the sort of woman a man dreams about when he thinks of the woman whom he would most desire. For dream-girls are made of your sweetness, and tipped with your flame—did you not know that, Molly? You're the kind of girl—"

"Bob!" she cried.

"Oh, I know, dear—I'm a good deal of an egg, and I've an awful nerve to ask you to marry me. I've given a couple of unpleasant exhibitions of just what kind of a chump I am. And it's darn preposterous to expect you to listen to me . . . But, after all, Molly, there are certain circumstances to be considered. I happen to be the father of a child whom you adore. If you should marry me, you would become Rita's mother. That ought to mean something to you."

She shook her head wildly.

"But, Bob, I have Rita now. You wouldn't ever take her from me?"

"Rita is mine," he said. "Suppose, Molly, that you should marry someone else. Would you expect me to give up my child?"

"But I'm not going to marry anyone, Bob!"

"It isn't," he insisted, "a matter on which I can hazard any chances. Nearly everyone wants to marry, and almost everyone succeeds. If you marry, you would probably have children of your own."

"I'd love Rita most," she declared.

"But I couldn't let you have her," he protested. "You must believe I love my child, Molly."

"Why, of course you love her! Everybody loves her. My goodness, Bob, what are you talking about? Anybody'd think—" She laughed nervously. "I'm sure I've no notion of getting married, or having a family, or anything of the sort."

"But you ought to. That's what's the matter with you, Molly. Your life is incomplete. You need a husband. Children. Requited live."

"Bob!" she appealed. "You make me sound like an old maid with a complex. Stop it!"

He put his arms about her awkwardly.

"Now listen to me, little girl. We've been friends for a long time, haven't we? We know each other pretty well."

She nodded, squirming uncomfortably.

"Well, I'm a fairly broad-minded sort of chap. I've stood back and watched you and Red Flynn, and I've kept my mouth shut. I believe that a girl should have enough experience to get a sane slant on love, exactly as men do. It gives them a better chance of happy marriage based on reasonable values.

"Sometimes, Molly, it's made me pretty sore, seeing you run round with Flynn. That night I came in, and found you in his arms . . ."

"Bob!" she cried.

"But that's all right," he went on. "If you hadnt played around a bit, the first man who broke through your guard to kiss you, would have given you such a devastating thrill, you'd have thought it was love-for-life stuff. Now you know better than that. You know, for instance, that Jack Wells and Flynn can both thrill you . . ."

"See here!"

Molly thrust him from her, and catching his coat lapels in both hands, held him. Searching his eyes with hers.

"You mustn't talk to me like that."

"Why not?" he demanded. "We might as well be honest with each other. Now listen, Molly . . ."

CHAPTER XXXIX

With her hands on his chest, Molly held him from her.

"Go on, Bob," she commanded. "I'd like to know exactly what you're driving at."

"You're different from most girls," he floundered. "You've got more sense. That's what experience does—gives a woman sense. As I was saying—if you'd been an innocent little kid, Red Flynn would have given you such a thrill you'd have thought he was the only man. But you know better than that. You know enough to discount this thrill business. I don't mean that I think your anything but the straightest girl that ever lived. If I didn't know that, I wouldn't ask you to marry me. I'm only trying to say . . . well, you know what it's all about, Molly. You're not an ingenue model, if you know what I mean."

"No," she conceded, "I'm no ingenue. Go on."

Bob cleared his throat with evident embarrassment.

"I know I don't give you much of a kick," he admitted.

"No," she interrupted cooly. "You don't."

"But that doesn't make any difference," he insisted. "When a girl marries, it's because the man has something she wants. You know, as well as I do, the transitoriness of passionate love. You know it's not worth building on, don't you. But I have something infinitely more important. I have Rita."

Molly stepped back.

"You're not trying to bribe me with Rita, are you?" she asked.

"Why, yes," he admitted, "I suppose I am—if you want to put it like that. You see, I know that you don't love me, Molly. I have to advance some reason to argue my plea."

"But it's ghastly to talk of marriage without love!" she protested.

"No," he contradicted calmly. "I don't think it is. There's a chap named Collins—a doctor—who has written some pretty sensible things about love. He says it's a sort of disease, that lasts about two years. Now, you've seen a lot of life, Molly. What's the use of looking for romantic love, when you know it won't last?"

"But I don't know anything of the kind!" she contradicted indignantly. "I'm an incurable romanticist."

He smiled cynically.

"Crying eternally for love, I suppose? No, you can't make me believe that, Molly. Some women are that way, I know. But you're different."

"I'm not!" she flashed. "I shall never be loved enough for my happiness."

"But I love you!" he cried. "Molly, I'm crazy about you! You know that, don't you? I'll love you, dear. I swear it."

She tried to laugh.

"But you're not romantic, Bob—not really. You make beautiful, grand protestations. But you're not a bit my kind of a sweetheart. You'd never do all the silly, sweet things I'd adore. Why, you'd simply laugh at my adolescent notions!"

"What kind of notions?" he demanded. "What do you mean?"

"Silly things," she floundered. "I'd love a husband who'd write me love notes every day, and pick me nosegays. And buy me things like lollipops and peanuts, because I like them so. And play the guitar nights, and sing me love songs. And kiss me before and after every meal."

"That sounds like a doctor's prescription."

"I know," she confessed, "it's awfully silly. But there you are! That's the sort of a husband I want. I tell you I'm a born romanticist. You never guessed I was one of those dreadful sentimentalists who go round simply screeching for love."

"You're a little liar," he told her coolly. "You're cold as ice, and you know it. You sent Jack Wells away, because he couldn't make money enough to satisfy you. You're playing at love now with Red Flynn."

"That's not true!" she defended herself.

But Bob shook his head.

"You're a vain creature, Molly. Love has come to you so often, it's grown a common thing." He was fumbling through his wallet.

"I've something to show you. Clipped it out of a magazine yesterday, because it made me think of you. I was sure I stuck it in here somewhere . . . Oh, here it is."

He held a torn piece of paper to her.

"Read it," he said. "It's prophetic."

She took it curiously, and read aloud:

"Love came to me so many times
It grew a common thing,
I thought that it would always come
With song-birds in the Spring:

And so I dreamed and wondered
What next year's love would be,
Until one Spring there came no bird
To any blossoming tree."

"It's pretty," she said, shivering delicately. "I suppose it's true too."

"Of course it's true," he told her. "Here's Rita now . . . Think over what I had to say, won't you? You might go further, you know, and fare worse. Suppose you married Flynn. Your children would have carrot-tops and freckles. Look at my daughter! Did you ever see anything prettier in your life?"

Rita was wearing a cashmere of lilac color, sprigged with pink roses and forget-me-nots. Her linen slippers were gay with embroidery, and her wide-brimmed hat was loaded with tiny flannel flowers. They fluttered from the ends of her sash, and were caught in a perky nosegay on her shoulder.

"Hello, mama! Hellow daddy!"

She kissed them impartially.

"Oh, daddy, I know some new words. Nancy's teaching them to me. Fermez la bouche. It means 'shut your mouth,' daddy."

"I told her it was naughty to say that," declared Nurse Marie primly. "Nancy's nurse is a very common person, Miss Burnham. I shan't allow Rita to talk with her again."

"Oh, that's all right," declared Molly gayly. "It's time Rita got rough. Don't you adore her accent, Bob? I'll run along now, and not bother you. Be a good girl, Precious."

She stooped to kiss Rita, and Bob said again, "Think over what I had to say, won't you?"

"Fermez la bouche," she told him over Rita's head, and laughed because he seemed annoyed.

She went from the nursery to her bedroom, and threw herself on the chaise longue. Bob had threatened to take Rita away, if she did not do as he wished. He was stubborn enough to do it, too. Molly knew that he had been more successful lately. He could hire a capable woman to care for the child, and do the housework also. Rita did not need constant supervision any more. She was a healthy, intelligent child. As Molly frequently remarked, having her about was almost like having a grown person in the house. She was such a dependable little creature.

If marriage with Bob was unthinkable, so was life without Rita. Lots of people marry without love, and are happier than the romanticists. So many romances are failures. Expeditious marriages wear better, and last longer. Sensible people bring to matrimony the same sound reasoning with which they concider any other contract. Well, why not be practical? Molly sighed wearily.

Uncle Wiggily's Rubber Bird

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

One day Jingle, who was a little twin rabbit girl belonging to Uncle Wiggily, hopped quickly to her father. Jingle was breathing so fast she could hardly talk. Her pink nose was twinkling upside down and one of her ear ribbons, of which she wore two, colored pink, was dangling likea pig's tail.

"Why, Jingle," exclaimed Uncle Wiggily when he saw how excited she was, "whatever is the matter?"

"You would never guess!" said the little rabbit girl.

"Don't tell me that Johnnie Bushytail has bought more balloons to help him get up to his tree nest!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "That was his secret, but Billie and I found it out and I had to pull Johnnie down out of the air. Don't tell me Johnnie is in the air now."

"No, it isn't that," panted Jingle.

"It's a cat!" exclaimed Jangle, who was Jingle's twin sister. Jangle came hopping along just then to help tell Mr. Longears what it was all about. "It's a cat!" said Jangle.

"Do you mean a cat has some balloons and is floating in the air and I have to pull a cat down?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"No, it isn't that," said Jingle. "The birds are in the air."

"Well, but birds are on the ground," said the rabbit daddy. "Birds don't need toy gas balloons to help them rise in the air as rabbit boys do."

"Oh I guess we're all mixed up," said Jingle, sitting down on a toadstool. "You see it's a bad cat and he's after the birds in the air. He tries to catch them in his claws and teeth."

"And sometimes when the birds are down on the ground after they have been flying in the air the cat tries to catch them," said Jingle. "This bad cat hides in the bushes and he sneaks up on the birds so slowly, so slowly, with his tail lashing and his eyes glittering and then he makes a jump and sometimes he catches a poor little bird."

His claws were stuck

"Can't you stop him, Daddicums?" asked Jingle.

"Well I'll try," said Uncle Wiggily. "It isn't Jole or Tommie Kat, is it, who tries to catch the birds?"

"Oh, no!" answered Jingle. "It's a bad, strange cat. We don't know his name. Please do something to him."

"I will!" promised Mr. Longears. "Of course," he said, "It is the nature of cats to want to catch birds. Cats are like tigers. But the birds around here are so good, they sing such sweet songs and they catch so many bad bugs which otherwise might bite us, that it is a pity to have cats catch the birds. Though it is the nature of cats to do this and hard to stop them from doing it."

"How can you stop this cat from catching birds, Daddicums?" asked Jangle.

"I think I know a way," said the rabbit gentleman. "First I want to see which cat it is and how he goes about catching birds."

"Hide in the garden under the grape vine and you'll see," said Jingle. "The cat was there a little while ago."

So Uncle Wiggily hid and watched and soon he saw some birds hopping on the ground picking up bugs and seeds. Then along came sneaking a big, black, hungry cat. His tail twitched, his eyes glittered and he was sneaking up so softly, so softly.

"Shoo!" suddenly shouted the bunny gentleman and the birds flew away before the cat could get them. The cat looked at Uncle Wiggily, being angry at thus losing his dinner, and the cat snarled:

"Naa-a-a-ah!"

"I'll fool you next time!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

"How?" asked Jingle and Jangle.

"With a rubber bird," said Mr. Longears. He took a piece of old rubber boot and tied it with a string into the shape of a bird. On the rubber bird Mr. Longears fastened some chicken feathers, sticking them on with gum from a pine tree. When the feathered piece of rubber was put in the grass it looked just like a bird.

"Now we'll hide and watch and see what the cat does," said Uncle Wiggily to Jingle and Jangle. Soon the black cat came sneaking along. His tail twitched, his eyes glittered and he sneaked along softly. All at once he made a jump and caught what he though was a bird.

But his teeth and claws were stuck in the feather rubber. Oh, how surprised and disappointed that cat was when he found he had only a rubber bird. He couldn't bite it or chew it or eat it.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Mr. Longears, Jingle and Jangle.

That cured the cat of catching birds. And if the clothes-horses will ring the door bell and call the canary bird to breakfast, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's basket.

Horoscope

"The stars incline, but do not compel."
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1933

Conflicting planetary influences appear in the horoscope for to-day, according to astrology. Again beaten paths and well-tried friends are safest.

In the early hours young and old may be conscious of a distaste for work. The planetary government encourages laziness and sluggishness.

Self-discipline that adheres to strict routine and meticulous care regarding detail is recommended. The stars encourage exact planning of work and wise use of leisure hours.

It is not a fortunate day for writing important letters or dictating documents that are of legal value. Lawyers should be cautious.

There is a sinister sign for those who borrow under this configuration. Whether the lender be a bank or a friend, regret is foreseen for those who pen their signatures.

Persistently the stars presage discontent on the part of certain classes of agriculturists. Farmers should find fault with themselves first.

Return to stricter standards of manners and morals will be evident at this time, when young folk will set good examples to their parents, astrologers predict.

Reign of jazz ideals will cease gradually, it is presaged, and once more the best in the arts will be appreciated.

The theatre comes under a sway that is encouraging. While comedies will win acclaim there will be success for serious plays, the seers prophesy.

Although this is not a lucky date for those who dream of romance, girls may expect good luck in making friends. Dances are well directed by the stars.

College students of both sexes are subject to planetary influences making for hard work and real achievement.

Under this sway parents should be careful not to overstep the bounds of severe dignity, for youth will be exacting and critical.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which friendship means much. Business affairs should be safeguarded.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly talented. Subjects of this sign usually are strong of body and alert of mind. Both boys and girls should be able to win success.

Helen Wills Moody, famous tennis star, was born on this day, 1906. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include George Westinghouse, 1846, inventor, and Luis Pereira de Sousa, 1830, once president of Brazil.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Although millions of Americans eat oysters solely because of their enjoyment of the mollusks as a food, it is satisfying to know that the richness in minerals, and other factors, make oysters an important and nutritious addition to the diet.

Food research chemists tell us that "marine fishes, mollusks and crustaceans contain a higher percentage of iodine than any other marine food, with the exception of marine algea. Oysters, clams and lobsters contain about 200 times as much iodine as milk, eggs and beefsteak.

"It is evident that by using marine fish or shellfish in the diet two or three times each week, the amount of iodine ingested could be increased considerably. These facts should be of interest to the American people, especially to those in the so-called goiterous belts in which the iodine content of the water and foods is below normal. This is important in planning the diet of young people living in districts where disorders of the thyroid gland are common."

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quic Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do no know that the cause of Piles is in ternal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when MacFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stuborn the case. TOO AMBITIOUS ON EDUCATION

Time to Come Down to Lower Plane, Says Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe

Premier Challenges Liberal Leader For Policy on Natural Resources

It was time the province stopped trying to make "Clydesdale colts into race horses," Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Lands and Education, told an audience of women at Lake Hill Community Hall yesterday afternoon when discussing the need for changes in the educational system.

Mr. Hinchliffe said he could not see what use the forty-eighth proposition in Euclid would be to a girl who intended to train as a nurse. He advocated changes in the attitude toward higher education which would have the effect of determining at the outset whether a student was fitted to pursue studies or not.

He agreed that a student should be advanced as far as possible in elementary subjects, but after that his ability to absorb higher learning should be considered.

"It should not be left until a student is twenty-two years of age before he is told he is not adaptable to the profession he has chosen," the minister said.

CHANGES NEEDED

Dealing particularly with matriculation subjects, he said that while some students might be perfect in their chosen professions, yet be without the ability to master some of the subjects laid down for the matriculation tests. Changes were needed in this respect, he maintained.

On the question of replacing the examination system by the recommendation plan for advancement of pupils, Mr. Hinchliffe said this needed very careful consideration. He instanced the position of a teacher of a rural school when called on to pass the child of a chairman of the school board. It was not likely she would fail the student.

"Every teacher would have to be an Aberdonian—Presbyterian," he commented.

PREMIER LAUDS ECONOMY

Premier Tolmie spoke on the same platform, appealing on the Unionist ticket. He lauded the action of the government during its last year in office in cutting down administration costs by $7,500,000. There was only one party, he claimed, which had had experience in handling affairs under conditions existing during the last four years.

The Premier challenged Mr. Pattullo for declaration of a policy of dealing effectively with the natural resources of the province.

He warned against the province embarking on a programme of lavish expenditure when normal conditions return. The energies of the government at that time must be devoted to reducing the public debt and relieving taxation," he said.

Mrs. P. P. Osborn was the chairman.

RIGHT TO JAW CAUSED TROUBLE

Courts Hear of Argument at Otter Point Dancing Contest

An assault alleged to have arisen out of an argument at a dancing competition at Otter Point was described to Magistrate George Jay in the Provincial Police Court yesterday afternoon.

Sidney Norlin was the defendant in the affair and William Locke Jr., who claimed his jaw was broken by Norlin, the complainant.

The defence claimed there had been provocation for the two blows on the chin that had been administered to Locke. It was stated that Locke had violated the rules of a balloon dancing competition by stepping from the sidelines and bursting balloons attached to the dancers' ankles. Furthermore, he had stepped on Mrs. Norlin's foot, it was alleged. Stuart Henderson, counsel for Norlin, argued that this was sufficient justification, but Sergeant Richard Harvey maintained that there was nothing to warrant the accused taking the law into his own hands.

At the request of Mr. Henderson, the case was adjourned so he could secure another witness.

HARTLEY TO TELL OF ASTRONOMERS

The second of the autumn meetings of Victoria Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, to be held at the Y.W.C.A. at 8 o'clock, Friday evening, will be of great interest.

The lecturer will be Charles Hartley, M.A., who will speak on "Two Great Astronomers, Tycho Brahe, the Great Observer, and Kepler, the Great Calculator."

Copernicus, whose work revolutionized the conception of the solar system, had died three years before Tycho Brahe was born, but his theories were not yet accepted.

To test their truth Tych Brahe for many years patiently observed and recorded the positions of the planets, finally rejecting Copernicus's views. It remained for Kepler to take Brahe's observations and form them to confirm Copernicus and to formulate the true laws of the solar system.

The drama of these discoveries which required a life time of study will be told. The lecture will be illustrated by lantern slides. The meeting is open free to the public. All interested in astronomy are being invited to join the society.

INVESTIGATE LEGAL RIGHT

Ratepayers' Question Saanich School Trustees' Power in Collecting Fees

Scale Was Enforced Before Officially Ratified By Board, Trustee Says

The legality of the Saanich School Board's action in collecting high school fees before the system was officially authorized by the trustees, was questioned at a meeting of Ward Two Saanich Non-political Ratepayers' Association in Cloverdale School yesterday evening.

The association appointed the following committee to investigate and bring the matter to a decision with the board: E. C. Warren, C. H. Underwood, O. B. Ormond and F. Lancaster.

Discussion of the board's policy arose following a review of the fee system given by Trustee Walter P. Jeune, who explained that the board had collected the $5 fee bfeore it was officially ratified by resolution. Several weeks ago, he explained, it had been decided to inaugurate the scale of fees, but recently the board had discovered that the resolution had not been actually passed, according to the minutes.

At the latter meeting the new scale had been ratified, but in the interval the board had been collecting the fee from high school students.

ANTI-WAR GROUPS GO TO VLADIVOSTOK

Canadian Press

Shanghai, Oct 5.—Officially barred from holding their conference here, Lord Marley, chief Labor whip in the British House of Lords and chairman of the "Asiatic Anti-War Congress," and delegates to the congress, left here yesterday for Vladivostok, Siberia.

The China Press, English language daily, said the visitors "blundered by making their ill-starred journey without first consulting the Chinese government. They committed a further series of blunders in Shanghai, the worst one which stripped the delegates of their last shred of dignity, being the holding of a hole-in-the-corner meeting Saturday in defiance of the authorities."

This secret meeting is alleged to have been held in the Buddhist house residence of "Tsao Kung," the name adopted by Trebitsch Lincoln, former British member of Parliament and notorious international spy, when he became a Buddhist priest.

In the British Labor Party Congress at Hastings, England, this week a delegate openly referred to Lord Marley and Miss Ellen Wilkinson as "coquetting with the Communists."

SLOT MACHINES OUTLAWED

Edmonton, Oct 5 (Canadian Press).—Fourteen merchants and one business firm here pleaded guilty yesterday before Magistrate Primrose to charges of operating gaming houses, by the operation of slot machines. Each was fined $7, and police said they believe slot machines now were definitely outlawed in the city.

SHREDDED WHEAT PROCESS SHOWN

Exhibit at Hudson's Bay Groceteria Shows Manufacture of Breakfast Food

Something new for Victoria is to see the processes involved in the manufacture of Shredded Wheat, the popular Canadian breakfast food.

The product is now being made at a special demonstration at the groceteria of Hudson's Bay Company store, and the simplicity of the process and hygienic method adopted in making the cereal is causing considerable interest among shoppers.

Grains of first-class wheat, carefully cleaned, pass between two rollers and come out as shredded wheat, falling in long strings to a tray beneath. One of the slowly-moving rollers is smooth, the other grooved, and as they revolve a fine steel comb removes the long shreds from the grooves. As the tray is filled, it is taken from the machine and the long shreds are then shaped, by a mould, into the rounded "cakes" so well known to Canadian breakfast tables.

The machine is, of course, only a miniature of the big ones which turn out the product in the main factory at Niagara Falls. There the product is never touched by hand. Ingenious machines clean and wash the wheat, a conveyer system carries away the long shreds after they have been cut, and they move by machinery into the moulds and thence to the baking ovens.

Nothing is added to the wheat as it enters the shredding rollers, and all the fine qualities of the Canadian grain are retained for the consumer. Large numbers of visitors are being attracted to the demonstration while it is in Victoria.

C.C.F. Is Urged As Christian Move

Future For Boys and Girls Is Held "Black as Hades" Under Present System

Pooley Would Have Been Expelled From British Schools, Sheppard Says

A crowded auditorium at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday evening heard the four C.C.F. candidates in the city appeal for support in their campaign to bring about an improved condition of affairs in British Columbia for its people.

"This is a matter of life and death," said T. Guy Sheppard. "We have children growing up to whom the future is black as Hades. It is just a tragedy that the boys have nothing before them but mental stagnation. And it is worse for the girls. In the last year under the social conditions that have developed under our system, there was an increase in illegitimate births in Canada of 47½ per cent. You people who have not yet felt the pinch have no conception of the horror of life for those who are down and out. And more who had thought they were secure are now beginning to feel it. We have been content to take what was offered us because we did not stop to think."

As for Attorney-General Pooley and his use of secret police on his opponents in this campaign and his denunciation of the C.C.F. as being "Communistic," Mr. Sheppard said:

"I do not expect the man who is attorney-general of this province to tell an untruth when he knows he is telling an untruth. But when he says we are hand in glove with the Communists, Mr. Pooley is telling a deliberate untruth and he knows it. He says he has his secret police and stool pigeons watching us. I was educated in one of the great British public schools and I was during the war an officer in one of His Majesty's distinguished regiments. And I can say that such tactics as Mr. Pooley is employing at the present time would have had him expelled from any public school in Great Britain and would have got him kicked out of any regimental mess in the British army for conduct unbecoming a gentleman."

FOLLOWING CHRIST

Robert Connell dealt with the relationship of the C.C.F. movement to religion.

"I believe the Christian movement has at bottom a fundamental side and that side I call socialism," Mr. Connell said, going on to point out that his stand on this was the same as that of the late Bishop Gore of Oxford and other outstanding leaders of the Catholic and Protestant Churches. "If you heard a condemnation of the evils of our present system read out of the Book of Proverbs in the Bible it would amaze you as to its modernness and appropriateness.

"Christ's own teaching was that of mingling with the common people. And the people who sat in high places in those days, who are the same as the ctpitalists to-day, said He was a blasphemer, in just the way that The Colonist talks of the C.C.F. It was the capitalists who put Him to death.

"This idea that the C.C.F. is contrary to religion is nonsense. What does our religion teach us but that man belongs to one great common brotherhood?

"If Jesus Christ came to this world to-day, face to face with conditions, do you think He would support the capitalist system—the system of injustice that keeps the people down?"

A storm of cries of "No! no!" came from the audience.

"The present condition of affairs is a flat contradiction of everything the Master taught and everything that belongs to our common humanity.

"We are out for justice for everybody—for the rich man as well as for the man who is down and out.

"We stand to-day at one of the great crises of history when everybody has a vital, burning interest in what we have to decide. It is a question to-day of brotherhood and justice in human society. We face the question of whether we are to allow the machine of our society to dominate, or whether we are to rise up as intelligent Canadian men and women and say we will be masters of it and make it work for us.

"All we have got to do is to put out of our minds that fear of change. The working out is not of so much importance as the decision to do it. I think we of the C.C.F. shall be able to give you evidence that we are honest men, and do something to bring on earth here some kind of brotherhood and social justice."

Mr. Connell declared that the statements of Dr. Davidson in the papers yesterday to the effect that the C.C.F. had an office in New York alongside that of the Soviet representatives was an absolute invention.

"If it were a fact, the papers long ago would have been publishing pictures of it," he continued.

He also declared one of the Victoria papers had misrepresented the C.C.F. convention in Victoria last week-end and purposely perverted the facts.

MUST DESTROY EVIL

Mr. Sheppard in his speech referred to the photo-electric cell and its ability to see through a fog. He suggested it might be used to see through Dr. Tolmie. He declared Dr. Tolmie's four candidates in Victoria consititued a gallery of distinguished politicians and soldiers, but he failed to see what such men could contribute to the solution of the problem of continued living under present conditions.

"The only way you can get into the era of true prosperity is by destroying the evil that is holding us back, and that is the evil of the profit system," Mr. Sheppard went on. "Mr Pattullo says our programme is straight socialism, but I think straight socialism is much better than the kind of capitalism Mr. Pattullo indulges in.

"All the other parties in this campaign stand for the old system which has collapsed, while the C.C.F. represent something different. These old parties don't seem to have sensed that there is a new atmosphere around today."

Dealing with the agricultural problem, Mr. Sheppard told of an old woman of eighty years in Esquimalt who has paid taxes for forty-four years, but is now having her home sold over her head for taxes.

"You talk about confiscation! Who is doing the confiscation there?" Mr. Sheppard went on. "Who owns the farms on the prairies—the farmers or the mortgage companies? It has been found that the farmers are more socialist than the city people."

He declared the C.C.F. plank on land called for security of tenure.

"The C.C.F. has no intention of taking your home from you nor your toothbrush or pyjamas. It is going to give you what the capitalist system cannot give you, security and the right to maintain a home over your head. Unless you bring this C.C.F. idea into operation, you are going to have the most chaotic condition ever."

HUMAN REQUIREMENTS FIRST

V. Midgley declared that in caring for the needs of the common people's interest, the members of the C.C.F. convention were doing the Great Master's work although they did run over from last Saturday into the Sabbath day. He said this in reply to editorial criticism to the effect that they were breaking the Sabbath by discussing C.C.F. problems on Sunday.

The Liberal policy of "work and wages" was criticized by Mr. Midgley on the ground that it was the same old capitalist cry, while the capitalist ran off with all the profits. "It is not work, or wages we have to worry about, but the distribution of goods," he went on.

He pointed out that the tendency of the government in the last few years has been to nullify the gains in social legislation and social services achieved in preceding years.

"The C.C.F. proposes to place human requirements first," he continued "There is no hope in the present price system. It is impossible to put back into industry the workers that were formerly employed."

He quoted Montagu Norman, high priest of the present system as saying he "did not know where we were going."

"We have people who have not mattresses to sleep on and this in spite of the fact that the warehouses are bulging with mattresses," Mr. Midgley went on. "But the people who need such things cannot get them because there would be no profit in it for the master class. Our present method of production of goods is idiotic or chaotic.

"My, how they do howl when we talk about socialization of finance and insurance—one of their best grafts."

He said that when the C.P.R. wanted $60,000,000 the other day, Premier Bennett at Ottawa had no difficulty in finding it, but when the question of relief was raised in the House last session the Premier and his colleagues raised their hands in horror and cried there was no money.

"Bennett went from conference to conference but has got nowhere and we still have a glut of goods and people unable to get anything," Mr. Midgley continued. "The god of profit will not allow us to apply our labor to the resources of the richest continent. The present profit system is also heading us directly into another war. There is no way of ending war except by ending the profit system. What has the status quo got for you? It has brought no security for you now and it hold no security for the future. Join hands with us in helping to bring about a better condition of society."

LOOKING TO FUTURE

W. B. Caird said that the provincial C.C.F. convention here last Saturday was unique in that it was made up of young men.

"They were young men looking to the future and not old men looking to the past," said Mr. Caird. "And the next election should see the end of the present conditions in B.C."

Mr. Caird declared that far from B.C. being isolated if a C.C.F. government were elected here, as claimed by the capitalist press, this province would likely be isolated if it did not as it was probable that the prairie provinces at their first opportunity would put C.C.F. governments into power.

Mr. Caird discussed industrial problems and dislocation of employment, distribution and consumption through modern invention and labor-saving machinery, and particularly the wonders of the photo-electric cell.

"Our troubles arise through the substitution of machinery for men," Mr. Caird went on. "It would only be possible for us to go back to conditions as they were five years ago by the destruction of all this modern machinery. The political ideas we had of a hundred years ago, we are trying to make fit modern, changed circumstances. We must make our ideas conform to these changed conditions."

R. F. Miller, secretary of the local C.C.F. council, was chairman. A collection was taken up to defray the cost of the hall.

Make Keen Analysis Of Liberal Platform

Esquimalt and Saanich Liberals Hold Joint Meeting at Craigflower School

Large Gathering Told of Plans of Party For Aiding Province Toward Recovery

A brief and searching analysis of the various parties in the field at the present time and the conclusion that the Liberal Party was the only united party with a strong platform which had been drawn up by a true cross-section of the people of the province featured the addresses given at a joint gathering of Saanich and Esquimalt riding Liberals yesterday evening at the Craigflower School, at which C. E. Whitney-Griffiths, candidate in Esquimalt; Norman M. Whittaker, candidate in Saanich, and Carew Martin of Victoria spoke. E. Wilkinson acted as chairman.

Mr. Whitney-Griffiths referred to the great fear of the movement known as the C.C.F., which he claimed was truly socialistic. In defining socialism he stated that it "means and aims at an economic theory or system of reconstruction of society on the basis of the co-operation of labor and the community of property." In opposition to this was Liberalism, "a movement of liberation, an opening of channels for the flow of free, spontaneous vital activities." The Liberal policy stood ready to give every man an opportunity to exercise the right to take part in the formation of the law of the community, whereas the C.C.F., with its Council of Nine was a strict autocracy, responsible to no one but itself.

CONSERVATIVES WIPED OUT

The great Conservative Party that has done so much in establishing popular government throughout the world has been completely wiped out of existence, he asserted, "if we had real men who realize that the first part of the name of the province is 'British,'" he declared emphatically, "we would not be in the mess that we are in at the present time. They would have gone to the country when they found out a number of years ago that they were not able to cope with the situation."

He summed up the work that had been done by the Liberal Party in the past, including such acts as the Civil Service Act, the formation of the Department of Labor, the public works policy and the extension of the franchise to women and the possibility for women to sit in the House and numerous other acts.

With regard to the major question of unemployment the party planned to create work and wages and intended to bring that about by getting the federal government to assist the provinces refinance at lower rates of interest and the establishment of contributory national employment insurance.

As a farmer he asked the question "Why State Health Insurance?" Mr. Whitney-Griffiths then went on to explain that the province needed a land policy that would bring to an end such things as isolated, inaccessible settlements out of all reach of medical assistance, schooling facilities and the modern conveniences of life. It was the duty of the government, he claimed, to legislate what is best for the people and as they, as an experienced body, saw fit, for the betterment of conditions.

YEARLY REPORT

He closed by saying that he was in favor of the candidates giving a report to the constituents after each session and meeting with other parties who might have possible reforms and new ideas to suggest. He also favored the establishment of a Highway Commission that would take the politics and patronage out of the road policies and insure a definite, well-planned and continuous programme.

One of the greatest insults ever offered to the people, he announced, was the statement by the former Minister of Agriculture after being in office for five years and accepting $52,000 in salary that he was not suited for the position.

Norman M. Whittaker, Liberal candidate in Saanich, told of how the party system of government was being blamed for the depression; the party system was not a sinister figure he explained, but a medium for carrying into effect the ideas of a number of people with the same general trend of thought. The human element enters into the government, he continued; the party was not a thing in itself.

Referring to the C.C.F. he asserted that candidates, before they were acceptable to the Council of Twelve, ruling authority of the C.C.F., they must pass an examination in the principles of socialism. In their platform they planned to socialize the land, which meant the abolishing of private ownership of land. Drawing the inference from J. S. Woodsworth's evasive answer to the question "Are the C.C.F. going to take away private property?" that they planned on taking away private property of all sort, Mr. Whittaker declared that the people of the province were too courageous and too self-reliant to permit such a thing.

C.C.F. NOT READY

He flayed the C.C.F. for their stand in coming forward and stating that they are not ready to assume control of the government, but that the immediate objective is to hold the balance of power. Such a condition of affairs he branded as political immorality.

Work at reasonable rates of pay on public works of importance was offered as part of the solution of the immediate unemployment problem. The relief camps must be done away with, Mr. Whittaker said, and those in them must be given employment whereby he will be able to purchase the necessities and some of the comforts of life.

The Liberal party was being told by the people what to do whereas the autocratic Council of Twelve was telling the people what to do.

His party's finance policy was to place the greatest burden of taxes on the shoulders of those best able to bear it, the speaker said, and under that policy such useless and nonsensical things as the Jones 1 per cent tax would be abolished. There would be more exemptions in the lower scale of wages, he promised.

In the last few years there has been a tendency to make the Mothers and Old Age Pensions acts of charity instead of a right, as they were primarily intended, he contended and quoted several cases whereby the government, both at Victoria and Ottawa, had escaped paying the pension by technicalities. This would be rectified and put back on the former basis as soon as possible.

With the plank in the Liberal platform that the government could only be defeated on a straight want-of-confidence motion members of the Liberal government would be able to vote as their mind's dictate instead of having to conform to the wishes of the caucus.

Mr. Whittaker concluded with the assertion that the Liberal party was the only one in the field with a definite programme of progression.

Carew Martin summed up the various parties in the field and explained a number of planks in the Liberal platform, drawn up at Vancouver by the convention, and showed how it was a gathering together of ideas from associations all over the province. He claimed that the C.C.F. was "a real socialistic dictatorship."

PROPOSES LEGION VILLAGE SCHEME

Canadian Press

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 5.—Dr. J. E. Gimby, retiring president of the Soo branch of the Canadian Legion, is advocating institution of a "Legion Village Scheme" for the purpose of providing homes for single veterans drawing small pensions insufficient to maintain them.

At a meeting Dr. Gimby suggested houses twenty-two by twelve feet be constructed, and grounds and gardens arranged at a cost of approximately $120 per house. The Legion, he urged, should guarantee payment for materials used in constructing the dwellings and make collections to cover the guarantee.

A committee was appointed to study possibilities of such a scheme.

DEFICIT IS PUT AT $2,000,000

Hon. J. W. Jones, Speaking at Kelowna, Estimates B.C.'s Revenue Gap This Year

Kelowna, B.C., Oct. 5.—Contributory unemployment insurance for persons with incomes under $2,400, a definite land policy, the taking of highways out of politics, reduced taxation, orderly marketing and aid to mining were advocated by Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, in addressing a gathering of about 600 persons here. Mr. Jones was nominated Monday night as an Independent candidate in his home constituency of South Okanagan which he has represented continuously since 1916.

"We have had a lot of political hysteria lately," said Mr. Jones.

DEFICIT OF $2,000,000

"Even with expenditures reduced, we will have a deficit this year of $2,000,000. We must have experienced men who understand how to meet the changes of government.

"We have had to look after 129,000 people this year. We have spent $17,000,000 on unemployment, of which the province has provided about $11,000,000, and the federal government the rest. We have reduced our unemployment to-day to 90,000 people, but the number must necessarily be increased again when the winter comes, and we will have to provide for them. Our financial position is serious, and we must face it and not indulge in experimental legislation.

"The only way out is to get the best business brains and best political brains we have together and form a government which will be concerned with the public welfare. . . . No party can solve our immediate problems because they would be committing party suicide if they ever attempted to deal with them.

"The Socialist party platform which was laid down in Victoria this week is a copy of the Russian system," said Mr. Jones.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION

"I come before you and show you a way out of the difficulty," the Finance Minister said. "We must not permit unemployment to go ahead year after year as it has in the past.

"We must have a highway commission.

"We will soon be able to reduce taxation, and I do not believe in future increases. I shall try to bring in further reductions.

"Orderly marketing is another thing we must have. This will have to be passed by the federal government since we haven't the power."

CAPITOL THEATRE

Elinor Fair, who only a few years ago was one of the most popular leading women on the screen, has a small role in Paramount's "Torch Singer" which stars Claudette Colbert and features Ricardo Cortez, David Manners, Lyda Roberti and Baby LeRoy, and which is at the Capitol Theatre.

BUDDY ROGERS AT DOMINION

Has Leading Role Opposite Marian Nixon in New Picture "Best of Enemies"

With Buddy Rogers and Marian Nixon in the leading roles, "Best of Enemies," the new Fox comedy is at the Dominion Theatre. It is described as a novel romance depicted against as up-to-the-minute background as has ever been seen.

The story traces the development of a youthful love through the vagaries of events surrounding two youths. Differences between their families are brought out by things over which they have no control, and barriers are set in their way. The central background being the passage and the return of beer, the situations accompanying the romance are said to be highly amusing.

Also being shown on the same programme is "Shanghai Madness" starring Spencer Tracy.

Maugham Story Showing Here

A powerfully effective and colorful story and a notable cast mark the opening to-day at the Columbia Theatre of Warner Bros.' picture, "The Narrow Corner," by Somerset Maugham.

The author of "Rain" has again written of the little known by-places—the "narrow corners"—of the earth, where men spin out their lives pretty much as they please. The present story is laid in the Malay Archipelago, on one of the islands of the Dutch East Indies, after opening in Sidney, Australia.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Patricia Ellis, Ralph Bellamy and Dudley Digges have the leading loes in this all-star production. Miss Ellis, a newcomer to the screen, is not only an exquisite beauty, but a very able actress who played for years on the New York stage with her father, the musical comedy producer, Alexander Leftwich.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Ann Harding and Clive Brooks reached new heights with their stellar performances in "East Lynne," now showing at the Playhouse Theatre. "Harmony at Home," a musical comedy, is being shown on the same programme.

COMING TO CAPITOL

A great many things combine to give Ronald Colman a personal distinction before the camera, according to Richard Wallace, who just directed the English star in the dual roles of "The Masquerader" coming to the Capitol Theatre, Saturday.

The native modesty of the man is astounding in an actor, Mr. Wallace says. While most players conspire to get close-ups and big images of themselves into the eye of the camera, Colman either walks away or turns his back.

BAND PRAISED BY DR. TOLMIE

Premier Sends Letter of Congratulation to Kitsilano Boys; to Play Saturday

Premier Tolmie, who heard the Kitsilano Boys' Band play on its last appearance in Victoria, on being informed that the band will play at City Temple on Saturday night next, has expressed his pleasure in the following letter addressed to A. W. Delamont, leader of the boys:

"Dear Mr. Delamont:—I desire to take this opportunity of extending to you and the members of the Kitsilano Boys' Band my best wishes on the occasion of their first visit to the Capital City since winning the world's championship at Chicago this summer.

"I am sure the citizens of Victoria will take advantage of this opportunity to hear these clever young musicians, who have not only won laurels for themselves, but brought fame to British Columbia.

"I trust that they will receive the support necessary to enable them to compete in other parts of the world and hope that they will be as successful in the future as they have been in the past."

Political Paragraphs

Along the row this morning some of the politicians bluntly ruled out the report that plans are being made to launch a straight Conservative ticket of four for Victoria. Others classed it as what is known in political parlance as a "feeler."

* * *

If the report stirs a lot of interest among Conservatives a brave little party band may seek to name four candidates so that it will not be handed down in the records that the Conservative Party was not in the picture in the remarkable British Columbia election of 1933.

* * *

W. C. Moresby, K.C., is mentioned as a candidate provided there is a straight Conservative ticket. Mr. Moresby, his friends say, is annoyed at the disintegration and weird nomenclature of the new factions in Conservativism and would like to see the party in the fight as straight Conservatives.

* * *

Reginald Hayward was outspoken when asked if he would be linked up with the Conservative ticket if it were launched. "I am absolutely independent. I started out as an independent and shall continue the campaign as an independent," he remarked.

Herbert Anscomb will be a candidate. This was definitely established this morning. He was about town getting his nomination papers signed. He will run as an independent. He made the two hundredth candidate.

Another independent candidate in Victoria loomed on the horizon to-day when the name of C. E. Yearwood was put forward by a group of home and other property owners. Mr. Yearwood announced that his decision on running would be given before the end of the week.

Mr. Yearwood was one of the first to come out in the city, heading an independent organization against the administration. This organization functioned until recently, when most of its members were absorbed into the C.C.F. Mr. Yearwood, however, remained independent. Mr. Yearwood said that if he ran it would be in the interests of the over-taxed home and property owner, and in the interests of the small business men in the outlying parts, as well as in the centre of the city, who should have representation against the growing burdens of government and autocracy.

The United Front anounces its radio programme will be heard this week from CKMO at 8.30 p.m. instead of CKWX, as it previously stated. R. Leathes will be the speaker to-night.

A suggestion in The Sidney Review, published in his constituency of the Gulf Islands, that he might drop out of the race is strenuously denied by Russ Humber. Mr. Humber, who is running on a strictly independent ticket, is in the race to stay, he announces.

Mrs. Laura Dickie MacKay, Dugald Donagh, K.C. and George Walkem were chosen at a nomination convention yesterday to contest the Vancouver-Point Grey riding in the provincial election as Non-Partizan Group candidates. Following a close contest between the candidates, the unsuccessful nominess, Dr. Elmo Marshall and J. A. Paton, former reeve of Point Grey, sponsored a motion to make the selection unanimous. The motion was carried.

Robert Lawson of Grand Forks has been named C.C.F. candidate for the Grand Forks-Greenwood riding in the coming election. The convention was held at Rock Creek. T. A. Love, Independent, and Donald MacPherson, Liberal, are already in the field in that riding.

Local Boys' Club Tag Day Saturday

On Saturday the public will be given the opportunity of helping the Y.M.C.A. boys' work committee by buying tags. The only way in which this day will differ from the customary type is in the fact that for one hour, which has not been specified, business men of this city will take the places of the Y.M.C.A. boy tag sellers.

The Y.M.C.A. boys' committee is an institution well worthy of public support. Catering as it does more especially to those who can ill afford outside amusements, its subscriptions are of necessity low, and cannot possibly cover the expense of all its many activities. The tag day next Saturday is being organized with the idea of helping to bridge the gap between the outlay and the revenue of the organization.

BAR DEAD MEN VOTING HERE

Over 8,000 of Them Used to Do It in Victoria Before 1916

Only Living Victorians on List This Election; No More "Vote Often"

There are exactly 989 more voters in Victoria city riding eligible to cast ballots at the coming provincial election than there were at the last election, but there are nearly 10,000 fewer registered names than there were from 1912 to 1916. The reason for the decrease is that dead men can no longer vote.

When court of revision officials completed their compilation of the city list to-day they reported a total of 24,059 registered and listed eligible voters. At the 1928 election there were only 23,070 such names. It was thought this year's registration was the largest on record until officials turned back the books. They found that in 1916 there were 33,000 names on the voters' list, and that was in the days before women had the vote. Now somewhere around 40 per cent of the voters are women.

In their search for reasons for the drop in numbers, officials found that when it was decided in 1916 that dead men should no longer vote, there were struck off the list at the first court of revision after that more than 8,000 names. These belonged to men who had left this world years before, but their names remained fixed on the voters' list and it is said they were regularly voted upon on election day.

Besides all the "dead men" who voted on election day in those years, there were many men who had their names registered in each of the five wards of the city. One man was found who had his name down in eight different places in the city list and could vote on each.

To-day, however, every man or woman whose name is on the Victoria list, is alive, or at least was alive on the day on which the court of revision held its final sitting, two weeks ago. Those who have died since will be checked off on the printed lists between now and election day. All names are now cross-checked in all wards, so the ardent voter no longer has the privilege of voting in more than one ward.

TEXT OF TARIFF CHANGES AWAITED

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—While reductions in Australian primage duties are expected to benefit Canada, the Department of Trade and Commerce awaits more detailed information before making any pronouncement.

A cable from D. H. Ross, Canadian trade commissioner, outlines the changes made in the Australian budget, introduced in Parliament yesterday. He stated the reductions in tariff duties, income and other direct taxation and sales tax would approximate £7,490,000 annually.

Primage duty (a duty charged in addition to the regular tariff rates) is abolished on many items and reduced from ten to four and five per cent on others.

In some cases the reduction is applicable only to goods under the British preferential schedules. Primage on newsprint generally is fixed at four per cent and on timber under the preferential schedules, at five per cent.

Yachtsmen Tell Of Huge Sea Serpent Seen Off Victoria

MAJOR LANGLEY'S STORY

Major Langley described his experience as follows:

"On Sunday my wife and I went for a sail in the Dorothy around Discovery and Chatham Islands. It was a beautiful sunny day with a nice northerly breeze, and with that in our favor we successfully bucked the flood tide to Commodore Point and from then on made good time, although after entering Haro Strait we had, of course, to beat against the northerly breeze. On entering the passage between the north end of Chatham Island and Fulford Reef, the breeze lightened a bit and we were proceeding almost on an even keel with the end of the flood tide under us when the incident happened which for brevity's sake is set out in the following numbered paragraphs:

"1—The time was about 1.30 p.m.

"2—We were not talking and we were proceeding quite slowly and silently when suddenly my attention was attracted by a very loud and remarkable noise, something between a grunt and a snort accompanied by a huge hiss.

"3—I immediately looked ahead in the direction of the noise, at the same time shouting to my wife, and we both saw a huge object about 90 to 100 feet off, a little on the port bow and on the edge of the kelp just off the Chatham Island shore. It was only visible for a few seconds, but what both of us are absolutely agreed upon may be put down as follows:

"(a) It was every bit as big as the back of a large whale, but entirely different in many respects.

"(b) Its color was of a greenish brown. I should say a sort of dark olive green. It had markings along the top and sides. It seemed to be of a serrated nature.

COLOR DISTINCT

"4—Its color was very distinct as the sun was shining brightly on its wetted surface and it was such a short distance away that there could be no mistaking it.

"5—Just shortly after it went down a swirl appeared on the surface of the water ahead of the Dorothy.

"6—My wife saw it break water a very short time afterwards on the other side of Fulford Reef. The appearance was exactly similar, but it was much further away and had travelled fast.

"7—The only part of it that we saw was a huge dome of what was apparently a portion of its back.

"I may add that I have been cruising about local waters for nearly forty years in my leisure time. I have seen dozens of blackfish at various times and have also seen them out of the water. I was out whaling on the West Coast in 1911 when the boat I was in killed three whales, a humpback, sulphur bottom and finback, and towed them alongside to the whaling station at Cechart. Upon arrival at the station there was a sperm whale hauled out there.

UNIQUE MONSTER

"There was no similarity except in size between any of these and the creature we saw on Sunday. Nor, as far as I have been able to ascertain, does the appearance of any marine monster known to science correspond with it. A porpoise, of course, would look like a sprat in comparison.

"Upon comparing notes with Mr. Kemp, the appearance of this object tallies almost exactly with the creature that he and others saw about a year ago in the same neighborhood."

Both men were dubious about the use of their names as they realized that publication of such an incident might lead to comments unfavorable to them. After considerable persuasion by The Times' representative, both agreed to let their names be printed.

SEEN BEFORE

Mr. Kemp, who has spent a considerable part of his life on the sea, stated that monsters similar to this had been seen before in northern waters, and was also inclined to believe it possible that other yachtsmen may have seen the monster which he saw.

In an effort to determine whether or not the sea serpent has been seen by other Victoria residents, The Times would be glad to hear from anyone with information on the subject.

Vancouver, Oct. 5.—George Whelpy, arrested with William Banyard three weeks ago when police stated they caught them robbing the Capitola Pharmacy, to-day was sentenced by Magistrate W. N. McKay to nine months in jail. Banyard, who pleaded guilty immediately after their arrest, was sentenced to one year in jail. Whelpy pleaded guilty at the same time but later declared he was under eighteen years old. Police were unable to verify this.

Winooka-Equipoise Race Will Be Classic of the Turf

* * *

No Reason for Winooka to Prove His Right to Match Race

* * *

Babe Ruth and Tiny Boy Steal Spotlight in Boston Show

WINOOKA, the fleet-footed New Zealand horse, now stabled at the Laurel, Md., track is going to meet Equipoise, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's holder of the United States handicap championship, in a special match race at Belmont Park on November 7. The purse has not yet been set but those in charge of Winooka's American tour have suggested a purse between $10,000 and $25,000 with the winner to take all. It has been suggested the race be held over the seven furlong route. Equipoise is not strictly a sprinter but his world record mile of 1.34 2-5 at Arlington Park, shows he has plenty of foot.

* * *

We are unable to see why Whitney in agreeing to let his horse run against Winooka should stipulate that the Australian thoroughbred meet another good horse to prove his ability to run against the United States champion. Winooka has already proven his right to the match race in no small way. In his two starts since arriving in the United States Winooka has raced to decisive victories. He beat Hueu at Tanforan, Calif., early in the summer and not long ago he whipped On Rush at the Longacres track, located near Seattle. Equipoise has enjoyed a good season but suffered setbacks in his last two starts, being beaten by mediocre performers. After his recent defeat in the Grace Handicap at Havre de Grace it was announced Equipoise would be retired from the track but his owners have now decided to let him make one more start against the New Zealand thoroughbred. The race between the two stars will be an outstanding feature and will attract a huge crowd.

Frank Patrick, Pacific Coast hockey magnate, who last May was appointed managing-director of the National Hockey League has already got into action with the announcement yesterday that he intended to change the refereeing system in the major circuit. Much is expected of Patrick's connection with the N.H.L. as he is undoubtedly an outstanding authority on hockey. Patrick's main duty will be to have charge of the referees and the directors hope he will introduce a more uniform and better system than used in previous years. Patrick will no doubt have his hands full but he has a wealth of experience behind him and should be quite capable of coping with any difficulty that might arise.

The grip that Babe Ruth holds on the affections of his baseball public was never better illustrated than in Boston the other day. It was Charles Devens Day at Fenway Park and his mother and father sat proudly in the stands watching him pitch for the New York Yankees against the Red Sox. Nearby sat Eddie Casey, Harvard University football coach, and fifty-eight members of the football squad. In the stands were members of various clubs of which Devens is a member. But between them, with no thought of doing so, Ruth and a small boy stole the show.

* * *

It happened in the sixth inning. Babe Ruth was standing in his position in left field when a grimy youngster tumbled out of the bleachers and headed for him with a scrap of paper and the stub of a pencil. Straight across the field he ran not caring whether he held up the game or not.

"Hey," said the Babe, "don't you know any better than to run out here and hold up the game?"

"Nope," said the kid. "Sign this will you Babe?"

"Sure," said the Babe, "but I can't stop now. Run over there and sit on the bull pen bench and I'll sign it at the end of the inning."

* * *

While the crowd laughed and cheered the mite ran over and sat with the rest of the team until the Red Sox were retired. Then the Babe jogged over, borrowed a fountain pen and signed the scrap of paper. Then he reasoned that a scrap of paper wouldn't last perhaps and that a small boy who thought enough of him to hold up a ball game for his autograph deserved something better than that. So he called for a new ball, signed it and gave it to the boy. Two photographers bobbed up from nowhere, posed the Babe and the kid and took their picture. Meanwhile the game was proceeding but no one, including Mr. and Mrs. Devens, the Harvard football squad and the members of the Harvard, Racquet and other exclusive clubs, paid any attention to it. Everyone was watching the little drama in the bull pen.

When it was over, the Babe shook the kid's hand, patted him on the head and then, carrying out the amenities to the full, he called an usher and had the kid boosted into a box seat back of the Yankees' dugout.

Halifax, Oct. 5.—Owen Lennon, star forward with Halifax Wolverines last year, has received and rejected a professional contract from the New Haven Eagles of the Canadian-American Hockey League, according to J. H. Conn, manager of the Wolverines.

WHIP ROYALS IN SECOND BATTLE; LOSE ON POINTS

Defeat New Westminster 10 to 8 But Drop Two-game Series 14 to 11

Victoria in Lead 10-2 at Interval

Bill Henderson's Touchdown, With Only Few Minutes Left, Deciding Score

Vancouver, Oct. 5.—Victoria's stout bid for British Columbia rugby football honors to-day had fallen short. They whipped New Westminster, 10 to 8, yesterday evening, but lost out on the round, 14 to 11. The Royals had trounced their island rivals, 6 to 1, in the first game at Victoria.

A series of fumbles paved the way for the Victoria scores, a couple of unconverted touchdowns. With five minutes left to play, Victoria held a 10 to 2 lead, and seemed to have the series tucked away.

Then husky Bill Henderson came into the picture and wrecked the Islanders' hopes. A midfield fumble by Gaunt gave Westminster possession, forty yards from Victoria's goalline. Jack May grabbed the sphere. After two bucks, which earned twenty-five yards, Henderson trampled his way through the opposition for a touch. The extra points came on a Harris to Hackle forward pass.

AERIAL ATTACK POPULAR

The forward pass was used as an offensive weapon by both sides, but it proved a dangerous weapon. The slippery ball was fumbled several times to throw the die of fortune unexpectedly to one side or the other.

One of the speediest and best balanced team from Victoria ever to show here, the white-jerseyed crew stepped to the front early in the first quarter, when Gribble recovered a fumble on the Westminster ten-yard line and went over the goal line on the second down for a major score. The conversion failed.

Another Westminster fumble gave the Victorians their second score early in the second quarter. Imrie sent a long end-over-end punt deep into Westminster territory. McDonald fumbled it on his four-yard line and Victoria took possession. On the second down, Ernie Peden cut a beautiful hole in the Royals' line, and Vic Rogers slipped through for a touchdown, which went unconverted.

RESORT TO KICKING

With their power plays stopped dead against a stonewall defence, Westminster resorted to kicking. Trasolini kicked over the waiting Imrie, but the fleet Victoria back turned and scooped up the ball before it had touched the deadline and eluded five tacklers before being brought down fifteen yards out. An exchange of kicking a few minutes later gave Westminster their first score, when Trasolini again punted the ball soaring over the fence for a point. Again unable to make headway through the Victoria line, Trasolini kicked a second deadline point just before half-time.

Victoria started a march down the field in the third quarter, that but for fumbles would have sent them over for another major score. Two fumbles by Latta, and as many by Gribble, cut down their early gains and sent the Islanders back into their own territory.

Another Westminster fumble on their own forty-two-yard line gave Victoria possession, and a beautiful forward pass, Imrie to McInnes, netted fifteen yards, but the next was intercepted by Westminster, ten yards out.

COSTLY FUMBLE

Trasolini started the drive that finally pulled the Royals into the series lead. Three plays around right end netted twenty-five yards before the island line bucked up and held. In possession near midfield, Gaunt fumbled for Victoria and Jack May recovered for Royals on the Victoria forty-yard line. Two plays advanced the ball twenty-five yards before Henderson steam-rollered his way over for a touchdown.

SERIES SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Washington, Oct. 5.—For years during the "big drought" with the American League taking five out of six successive world series engagements, National League men have been looking for a "fighting team," a pennant winner that would go into the championship fray with plenty of confidence and the pitching antidote for rival slugging.

Pepper Martin and the Cardinals broke the spell in 1931, but last October it was another rout for the National League. From a source whence they least expected the tide to be turned, New York's 1933 model of the Giants stood out to-day as the answer to long-suppressed hopes.

Fortunes may switch with the change of battleground, but all the Giants have to do is win two more games, out of a maximum of five left to be played. It would seem nothing short of a miracle can stop Bill Terry's club from completing the greatest upset of baseball dope since Boston Braves dashed from last place to a clean sweep in the 1914 world series.

The Giants came to the capital neither to see the sights nor debate the issue, but to make it four straight. They have now become convinced the Senators cannot stop them.

If they make it three straight to-day, with Freddy Fitzsimmons opposing Earl Whitehill, they hope their ace southpaw, Carl Hubbell, will be rested and ready to try for a deciding victory to-morrow.

Goose Goslin's home run yesterday was his seventh in world series play. He hit three each in the 1924 and 1925 series. The Senator slugger still has a long way to go to equal Babe Ruth's record of thirteen for the championship race.

Al Schacht and Nick Altrock, the Washington funny men, had prepared a new stunt to entertain the crowd before the game yesterday. It was to have been some sort of a parade, featuring a number of pigs and a banner or two, but it missed fire completely when the porkers balked and refused to be led.

Babe Ruth was given a goodnatured razzing by several hundred National League fans sitting near the press stand when the Giants cut loose in the sixth round. "Yah, you American Leaguers," was the consensus of the remarks directed at the "Bambino." The big fellow took it with a wide grin.

GUISCARD IS FIRST CHOICE

Lord Derby's Thoroughbred Remains Favorite to Win Cesarewitch Stakes

London, Oct. 5.—Lord Derby's Guiscard remained favorite for the Cesarewitch Stakes, great fall handicap, in to-day's betting call-over. Yesterday final acceptances were called and thirty-seven were left in for the two and one-quarter mile test at turf headquarters. For the Cambridgeshire, second half of the historic "double," Cotoneaster was a lukewarm public choice.

Betting odds on the Cesarewitch to-day were as follows: Guiscard 7 to 1; Zimenes 10 to 1, Nitsichin 12 to 1, Negro 100 to 8, Loose Strife, Statesman and Sandals 20 to 1, Beau-Prere 22 to 1, Roi de Paris 25 to 1, Dick Turpin 28 to 1, Lucky Patch, Sanguinole, Snaity and Eugene 33 to 1, Erain, Chelmarsh, Blendearna, Seminole and Within-the-Law 40 to 1, Fox-Earth, Sarum and Trustee 50 to 1, Boldero and Daytol 66 to 1.

For the Cambridgeshire Cotoneaster was 100 to 8, Andrea 15 to 1, Ole King Cole 18 to 1, Limellight 20 to 1, Galapas and Totaig 22 to 1, Raymond 25 to 1, and Eroica 33 to 1.

Small Crowds Attend Little World Series

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 5.—Attendance at the little world series between Columbus of the American Association and the International League Buffalo Bisons tapered off at the end, unfavorable weather being a big factor. A mere handful of fans saw the deciding game, 3,424 compared with one crowd of 22,000 in the playoff with Rochester.

Total paid attendance in the eight games here and at Columbus was 46,922, and the cash receipts, minus tax, $49,507. Of this total, the Columbus players split $10,926, while the losing Bisons divided $7,991. Each club shares to the extent of $11,193; $7,426 went to the leagues and $1,465 to the association.

OTTAWA SENDS BOB GRACIE TO BOSTON FOR THREE MEN

Senators Secure Perk Galbraith, Ted Saunders and Alex. Cook in Latest N.H.L. Trade; Ottawa Will Have Twenty Men on Hand For Opening Training Sessions

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—Bob Gracie, left wing player of the Ottawa Senators, has been traded to Boston Bruins for Perk Galbraith, veteran left winger, Ted Saunders and Alex "Budd" Cook, a younger brother of the famous New York Rangers' pair, Bill and Bun.

Announcement of the trade was made by George Boucher, coach and playing manager of the Senators, following conclusion of the deal yesterday evening.

The addition of these three men gives the local National Hockey League team a large roster, and it is likely twenty men will be here for training when the squad assembles in a week or two.

Galbraith, who was born in Toronto, has been a member of the Bruins since joining them in 1926. Saunders, who began his career with the Ottawa New Edinburgh Juniors, joined the Bruins last year, playing right wing. "Bud" Cook began his hockey in Saskatoon, Sask. From the Oakland squad of the California Club, Cook went east to the Provincial Reds and then to Boston as a centre player last season.

AL FOREMAN LOSES BOUT ON TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

British Empire Lightweight Champion Unable to Continue Fight With J. Ghnouly, St. Louis, at Eighth Round; Foreman Unable to See After Taking Terrible Beating

Montreal, Oct. 5.—Youth, aggressiveness and ability to punch hard yesterday evening, won for Joe Ghnouly, St. Louis lightweight, a technical knockout victory over Al Foreman, British Empire lightweight champion, rated one of the hardest hitting lightweights in the world.

Foreman, who took a terrific beating about the face and head in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round non-title match, was unable to leave his corner for the eighth, and the bout was awarded to Ghnouly. Foreman claimed he was unable to see.

When the bell rang for the eighth he rose, but his manager dragged him back, refusing to let him continue.

The Missourian had a distinct edge throughout. From the beginning of the third round it was practically a foregone conclusion Ghnouly would beat foreman.

As the seventh round started, the fight took on a liveller tone as each fighter seemed out after a knockout. Ghnouly gained the advantage when his punches appeared to hurt his opponent more. Foreman took terrific punishment and appeared headed for a knockout when the bell rang. He wobbled to his corner uncertainly, apparently unable to find his chair.

Blue Ribbons In Old-time Form To Smother Slinger

Canadian Senior Men's Basketball Champs Win Opening Game 57 to 18

ART CHAPMAN IN SCORING SPREE

Finds Hoop For Twenty-one Points; Pantorium Girls and Colonist Winners

Playing sensational ball in the second half, Ernie Cook's Blue Ribbon basketballers swamped Slingers, 57 to 18, in the opening senior A men's game of the 1933-34 basketball season at the Victoria High School gym yesterday evening. Slingers played good ball for the first half when they held the Canadian champions to an 18 to 12 score, but wilted under the terrific second-half offensive. In the other two games The Colonist defeated Tillicums, 20 to 14, and the Pantorium women turned back the Standard Steam Laundry quintette, 23 to 16.

With the opening of the second half in the men's senior A game, the Blue Ribbons started to score prodigiously and will, Art Chapman, lanky centre, was particularly effective collecting twenty-one points during the forty minutes of play. The entire Ribbons team played great ball, their passing and shooting being of the same calibre they flashed in last year's Canadian play-downs.

NEW PLAYERS OUT

On their showing the Ribbons are heavy favorites to retain their city championships, and should be strong contenders again for the provincial honors. The champions introduced three new players on their line-up, Robertson, Peden and Martin and all showed to advantage. Joe Ross, reliable guard with last year's club who had announced his retirement this season, was again on deck and turned in a steady performance.

Claude Sluggett, a member of last year's Ribbons, was the only member of Slingers who was effective against the Ribbons' defence and he collected ten points.

Both women's teams played good basketball with the Pantorium having a decided edge in the opening half, while the Laundry five staged a great rally in the final two quarters, only to fall short by seven points. Mary Wilson and Buddy Elston were the scoring stars for their respective sides, the former scoring ten and the latter eight.

In a very ragged exhibition with the score swinging back and forth, the Colonist got the jump on the Tillicums for local senior B men's honors. The Colonist had a 6 to 4 lead at half time, and increased their margin during the final twenty minutes. Clark and Wright with six points apiece, led the newsies' scorers. Hill, with four points, was high man for the Tillicums.

Tommy Macedo refereed all games.

The teams and individual scorers follow:

Blue Ribbons—Craig 8, Robertson 12, Martin 6, A. Chapman 21, C. Chapman 8, Peden 2, Ross.

Manager Terry Played O of His "Hunches" i Making Switch

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Oct. 5.—Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, who has led the Nation League in batting, but never h been in a world series game, s on the Giant's bench yeste afternoon nursing his favorite b and a great ambition.

The bases were full of Giants the Senators were one big run to good when O'Doul turned to Hal S macher, sitting beside him.

"Hal," said he. "I've always good luck to you. If Bill will stick in there I'll win this ball game you sure as I'm knee high."

A moment later Manager Bill T had played one of his famous "hunc —that's what Bill called it after game—and there stood Lefty at plate, waving his war club at "G eral" Alvin Crowder. Another ment and there was a crack a-rin in the ears of 35,000 fans and Giants had sewed up their sec straight victory in the big series. T got more runs, but they were needed.

BIGGEST THRILL

Of all the hits he has gathered long and honorable swatting ca O'Doul admitted he got the big thrill out of yesterday's telling pu

Terry, while plenty pleased with success of his "hunch," refused to carried away by his team's prodig clouting.

Someone brought word Te youthful rival, Manager Joe Cro was a little down in the mouth the failure of his team to hit.

"Sure they're not hitting," chi "Memphis Bill." "And I'll tell why they're not hitting. They hav seen any pitching like we've thro at them the last two days."

"And I'll tell you something They're going to look over some m pitching that's just as good w Fred Fitzsimmons goes in there."

Outside of naming Earl Whitehill to-day's starting flinger, Cronin very little to say on any subject. American Leaguers were pretty subdued, even though Joe, himself, sisted his club was "two down four to go."

Asked why he permitted Crowder stay in there and take such a shella ing in the sixth inning, when Giants scored six times, Cronin vealed he is short on relief pitchin

"With Jack Russell nursing an jured thumb from Tuesday's game had no one to send in who I thou could do any better than Crowd he said. "I think we'll do better wh we get in our own park."

WALES TAKES SOCCER MATCH

Defeats Scotland 3 to 2 in International Engagement at Cardiff

Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 5.—Before a crowd of 45,000 persons, Wales defeated Scotland 3 to 2 in an international soccer match at Ninian Park yesterday evening. It was the second international match of the season, Ireland having defeated Scotland in the first.

Scotland attacked immediately at the start and harassed the Welsh defence until Griffiths was able to get the Welsh forward away. Robbins and Evans took the play up the field and Evans gave a centre that was captured by Anderson. He miskicked but the Scottish backs recovered in time to prevent O'Callaghan scoring.

At the other end of the field the Scottish nearly got a goal when John and Lawrence had a misunderstanding but the ball struck the upright and Griffiths jumped in to clear.

Scotland were more enterprising but the Welshmen provided the most exciting play, proving dangerous whenever they got a move. Brazil scored the first goal of the game for the Welsh after a fine run down the field. Harkness should have saved but he misjudged the flight of the ball.

O'Callaghan was injured but quickly got back into the fray and after an enterprising run sent a hard shot into the Scottish goalmouth which Harkness only partially cleared. Robbins rushed up and sent the ball into the empty net.

Scotland retaliated with several sweeping attacks, but they failed to beat the sturdy Welsh defence. Wales netted again through Phillips, but it was ruled offside and the score was still 2 to 0 at half-time.

SCOTLAND RALLIES

On the resumption, Scotland came up with a rush, the halves and forwards working beautifully together, but the latter always failed to finish their good work when nearing the goal mouth. McGurk was brought down close to the penalty area, but the free kick was cleared.

The Welsh forwards had the play again and Astley tested Harkness with a real beauty. The Scottish broke away and McFadyen, with a fine chance to reduce the lead, shot straight at the Welsh goalie.

After another Welsh raid, Evans forced a corner and immediately afterwards Phillips broke through, giving a perfect centre to Astley, who had no difficulty netting for the Welshmen's third goal.

Scotland attacked furiously, and after a nice centre from Duncan, McFadyen scored on a great shot. Duncan finished up a good day's work by a glorious solo run and a great shot that left John helpless in the net. The Scottish, however, were unable to get the tying counter in the short interval left before the game was over.

Hamilton Tigers Battle Way Into Lacrosse Finals

Eastern Champs in Fast Exhibition to Defeat Calgary Shamrocks 15 to 4

En Route to Coast to Meet New Westminster in Series For Coveted Mann Cup

Calgary, Oct. 5.—With another scalp added to the collection they have accumulated in their victorious march across the prairies, Hamilton Tigers, lacrosse champions of eastern Canada, rode through the Rockies to-day with New Westminster and possession of the Mann Cup their objective. The easterners disposed of Calgary Shamrocks, 15 to 4, here yesterday evening.

Disposition of the last prairie threat earned for the Bengals the right to meet New Westminster Salmonbellies in a three-out-of-five-game series, starting Friday night for the right to be styled Canadian lacrosse champions. The Shamrocks proved no match for their more experienced eastern brothers, who set and mainted a grueling pace throughout.

Ernie Rohmer's well-drilled easterners staved off desperate and fighting Shamrock rallies in the second and third quarters as they completed their coaquest of the prairies. Obley Curliss primed his men to gallant effort in the third session and the Calgarians did manage to outscore the easterners by two goals to one and reduce the lead to six goals at 9 to 3.

FINE TEAM PLAY

However, they were no match for the lightning Tiger combination play in the closing quarter when Alex. McPherson ran wild to net four goals and run the Hamilton total to fifteen, while the Shamrocks added one more goal.

McPherson netted six goals during the evening, while slippery Bill Wilson contributed five. Hugh "Shipwreck" Kelly was an eastern threat throughout.

Mentor of the Albertan crew, Obley Curlis played a gallant game in the Shamrock nets, but the avalanche of shots hurled at him was humanly impossible to stop intact. Eddie Wares led a creditable Calgary attack, but the defence was woefully weak.

BILL VEECK PASSES AWAY

Energetic President of Chicago Cubs Baseball Team Dies in Hospital

Former Newspaper Writer Rose to Fame as Head of National League Club

Chicago, Oct. 5.—William Veeck, President of the Chicago Cubs, died at 7.45 a.m. to-day at St. Luke's Hospital, where he had been suffering from leucemia, an excess of white corpuscles in the blood.

Veeck entered the hospital several days ago and his condition was considered critical from the start. The oxygen was administered yesterday when his difficulty in breathing caused his heart to be taxed and his temperature to rise.

During his illness Mrs. Veeck, William L. Veeck Jr., and Miss Margaret Veeck took turns watching at the bedside.

Sharp reportorial wit, backed by a keen sense of observation, lifted William Louis Veeck from the press box into the front office of Chicago Cubs as president and one of the outstanding executives of baseball.

It was back in 1918, when the White Sox were the baseball idols of Chicago, and the Cubs were regarded as just another ball club despite a National League pennant during that year, that "Bill" Veeck got his chance. A baseball writer under the name of "Bill Bailey" for the Chicago American, he had written a series of articles, criticizing the team and making suggestions for its improvement.

TAKES OVER TEAM

The late William Wrigley Jr., who had just purchased a controlling interest in the team, read the articles and called Veeck into his office.

"If you think you can do any better, then why don't you try it?" he asked.

"All right, I will," shot back the baseball writer.

And he did. At owner Wrigley's request, he became president of the Cubs December 8, 1918, second in command to Fred Mitchell, named president in addition to active managership on the playing field. On July 6, 1919, Mitchell surrendered the presidency to the enterprising baseball writer-executive and confined his attention to managing the team.

TRIED NEW IDEAS

Veeck's career as president of the club was featured by his willingness and eagerness to try new ideas. Toward the close of the 1933 season, he came out with the proposal the National and American League clubs play interleague series during their regular championship seasons.

It was Veeck who brought Joe McCarthy to the Cubs as manager and who fought for his retention and against the elevation of Rogers Hornsby from player to manager. It was Veeck who braved the criticism of fans and writers in dismissing Hornsby as manager in 1929, and who gave Charlie Grim the job, a move that ultimately resulted in the capture of the second National League pennant within three years for the Cubs.

Veeck was another small town boy who made good in the big city. Son of a wagon builder and cabinet maker, he was born in Booneville, Ind., in 1881.

A spectator struck Reilly, and Wilson "finished the job." The bout ended with the victor stretched out on the canvas.

GARRISON IN SOCCER LEAD

Defeat Spencers 3 to 1 to Take First Position in Wednesday League

Hudson's Bay Turn Back Macabees 2 to 1; Navy Chalk Up 10 to 2 Victory

Scoring a 3 to 1 victory over Spencers at the Work Point grounds yesterday afternoon the Garrison moved into first place in the Hayward Cup series in the Wednesday Football League. The Hudson's Bay turned in a smart performance to score their first win of the season at the Heywood Avenue grounds over the Maccabees 2 to 1. In the third match the Navy had little trouble whipping the James Bay Liberals 10 to 2 on the lower ground at Beacon Hill.

The six teams along with the league officials and referees observed two minutes silence at each game in tribute to the late Major W. C. Angus, president of the Pacific Coast League. At Heywood Avenue and Beacon Hill Bugler Bert Drysdale sounded the "Last Post."

PLAY IS EVEN

In the game at Work Point play was fairly even with the Garrison showing better team play. At the opening the Garrison took up the offensive, but Spencers' back division was safe.

About half way through the first half Chapman, who starred in goal for Spencers, was completely baffled by a bullet fast shot from Edwards, Garrison inside left. The ball came to Edwards on a fine pass from the right side wing. Spencers' backs, McMillan and Bissel prevented any further scoring during the first half.

At the beginning of the second half Spencers' goal was endangered several times, but was each time kept safe by Chapman. Early in this half a rush by Spencer's resulted in a penalty kick being awarded against the garrison. Bissell scored to deadlock the teams.

Shortly after Worswick, Garrison outside left sped with the ball down his wing, and passed to Miller, who in turn passed to McAllister, and the latter scored with a beautiful long range kick.

Play remained open for some time, both goalies and all four backs playing excellently. Finally in a crowd around Spencers' goal the ball was put in by Miller, centre forward. After this the game became ragged, and ended without further incident.

McKinnon refereed.

The teams follow:

Garrison — Glendenning, Burgess, Buxton, Dyer, Evans, Cook McAllister, Wilkerson, Miller, Worswick and Edwards.

Spencer's—Chapman, McMillan, Bissell, Munroe, Cann, Clarke, Brown, Preston, D. Bradley, Luxton and L. Bradley.

The Hudson's Bay-Maccabees fixture provided some good soccer and was closely fought throughout. The Bays took an early lead in the first half and although the clubmen tried hard they were not able to equalize the count.

Wyatt drove home the first counter for the departmentals late in the opening canto after receiving a pass from Moir, who had dribbled through the opposing backs. Wyatt held the ball for a few seconds before making the drive and then smacked in a fast one that gave Goalie Wilmshurst no chance.

Bentley registered the next tally for the Bays just before the half ended when he ran in from the left wing position to the goal and banged home an easy goal.

Maccabees settled down in the second half and several times looked dangerous, but the Bays' backs repelled their forward rushes steadily to stem off the attack. Their lone tally came about the middle of the half when during a mix-up in front of the Bays' goal O'Connell miscued a kick and the ball rolled past him into the net.

Tooby handled the whistle and the line-ups were:

Hudson's Bay — Baxter, O'Connell, Nicol, Mercer, Moir, Oakman, Ward, Fish, Wyatt, Bentley and Collier.

Maccabees—Wilmshurst, M. Speller, T. Graves, Gibson, Hill, Petford, W. Graves, Richards, Fieldhouse, Roberts and Stewart.

Navy experienced no difficulty in disposing of James Bay Liberals, scoring practically at will, with seven goals in the first and three more in the final stanza. The Liberals scored once in each half.

The Navy victory was greatly aided by a misfortune which came to the Liberals at the opening of the game when Crawford and Merfield were injured and had to be taken out of the game. No substitution is allowed in the league and consequently the losers were forced to complete the match two men short.

At the end of the first half the count was 7 to 1 in favor of the Navy, Bennallack having scored three times, Kostulck twice and McDonald and Marr once. Obee registered the single counter for the Liberals.

From the kick-off in the second half Davidson took the ball and lifted a long high kick into the Navy net to give the Liberals their second counter. Two more goals from Bennallack and one from Marr completed the scoring.

Wide Fluctuations In Grain Exchange At Winnipeg To-day

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 5.—Given strength by export purchases of about 750,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, futures prices absorbed all offerings on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to close ⅜c higher to ⅛c under the previous finish.

Values fluctuated over a narrow range all day in moderate trading. October option at last creeping up on the December, finished at 61c, November passed the more distant future, closing at 61½c, while December finished at 61⅛c and May at 65⅞c.

Hedging pressure was in fair volume, but there was sufficient buying to absorb the offerings. Most of the early buying was credited to export interests, purchasing against sales made last night and this morning.

Volume of trade for the day was appreciable, Chicago had little influence on the day's operation, Liverpool wheat was easy, slipping off to close ⅝d to ¾d lower.

Demand for cash grains was not so keen to-day and spreads on most grades were lower.

LACKED TONE AT MONTREAL

Canadian Press

Montreal, Oct. 5.—Lack of any definite tone marked trading on Montreal Stock Exchange to-day, and volume eased off after the opening flurry of buying orders. Broad fluctuations were numerous.

International Nickel was the active leader, but failed to respond to the heavy demand and fell off heavily, closing down 30 cents at 20.60. Shawinigan gained half a point at 17¾ while Canadian Car was up ⅜ at 6⅜. Massey-Harris, Dominion Steel and Brazilian, among others, were holding small gains while C.P.R., Dominion Bridge and several more were lower. Volume was slightly in excess of yesterday but the optimistic attitude which made itself evident yesterday was gone. Sherwin-Williams held a two-point loss at 10. Such stocks as National Breweries and Quebec Power held fractional gains.

TORONTO HAS NARROW LIST

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 5.—A few individual issues claimed attention to-day in the Standard Mining Market, some moving up and others slipping back while the general list moved within a narrow range. Lake Shore, Dome and Pioneer advanced and Bralorne, Teck, McIntyre and Wright-Hargreaves took narrow losses. Base metal shares were fairly steady and silver stocks a little weak.

Lake Shore advanced to 50.50, a new record, and closed at 50.40 for a gain of 40 cents. Dome climbed to 39.25, up 1.75, and Pioneer 50 cents. McIntyre closed at 46.50, off 1.00.

Reno registered a slump of 5 cents and Wayside was off a couple to 43.

Noranda closed firm at 36.50 and Sherritt was up a few cents.

GOVERNMENTS ARE FAVORED

Associated Press

New York, Oct. 5.—Continued favorable action in the United States Government list and general firmness in the corporation divisions were the principal features of the bond market to-day. United States Treasury issues rose from 1-32 to 8-32 point with the larger gains in the 3¾s of 1941-43 and the 3¾s high grade rails and utilities maintaining a firm tone while secondary ratings added moderately to yesterday's gains.

The foreign division improved considerably after early irregularity.

French Government issues pushed ahead in lively fashion, cancelling early losses and gaining one to two points besides. British 5½s failed to overcome an early fractional decline, but most other active issues sold a bit higher.

Ablest Men to Aid When Liberals Take Office, Says Leader

to have experts in all those lines. Perhaps I, with forty years' experience in public service, may be able to contribute special knowledge of governmental administration and in this way we can all co-operate for the benefit of the people."

WORK AND WAGES

Mr. Pattullo explained he expected the economic council to be a big factor in putting into operation the programme of "work and wages." While this would begin with public works its ultimate ramifications must be made to extend into every line of endeavor, distribution and industrial employment, effecting better methods of distribution, seeking out and developing markets, and so on.

CANDIDATE SPEAKS

Mr. Pattullo spoke from the same platform with Mayor A. Wells Gray, Liberal candidate for re-election in New Westminster.

Mr. Gray complimented Mr. Pattullo and the entire Liberal membership of the late House on the strong stand they had taken against the bill by which it was proposed "to commit the province to back the bonds of the Ladner Bridge Company." Mr. Gray said it had not been necessary for him to ask for the support of his Liberal colleagues, nor had he ever known Liberal members to be told how to vote on any measure.

Mr. Pattullo, pursuing the same subject, dissociated himself from Lieut.-Col. Nelson Spencer's statement that Senator J. D. Taylor had cast aspersions on every member of the Legislature with regard to the bridge bill.

NOT BOUND

"He cast no aspersions on the Liberal members because they all voted against it, said Mr. Pattullo. "I have said repeatedly that I would not be bound by commitments of the present moribund government, and I will not recognize this bill. I don't believe they can finance under it, anyway."

On the other hand, Mr. Pattullo said there was need for greater bridge accommodation across the Fraser.

"There has to be a bridge, but it will be provided in the proper way, and it will be a free bridge," declared the Liberal leader.

He linked this undertaking up with the "work and

Spend Less Money on Children Before Marriage, Help Them Out Afterward, Is Reader's Advice—A Dilemma Easily Solved

DEAR MISS DIX—There is one phase of parental responsibility that I do not think we sufficiently appreciate. The average father lavishes every luxury on his children, gives them a show wedding and then leaves them to sink or swim, considering his duty done. I think that if the parents of either the bride or groom or both are financially able to aid them after marriage they should do so. A few hundred dollars made available to them as a regular allowance would prove more important in the lives of many young people than many times that amount spent before marriage or inherited later as part of an estate. The theory of putting youngsters on their own was all very well when a man could hew out his fortune with an ax and provide for his family with a plough and a rifle. Youth then was enough of an asset. Now youth is a liability and too often it is wasted in senseless drudgery or blighted with anxiety over the lack of money. It seems to me that it would be more sensible if we spent less money on our children before marriage and reserved a fund to help them over the first difficult years after marriage. X.

Answer—Right you are, Mr. X., and I hope every father and mother who reads your words of wisdom will lay them to heart and profit by them.

Time and time again in this column I have written of the absolute cruelty of parents who pamper and indulge their children in every luxury, who bring them up to be soft and dependent on creature comforts, and then when they marry chuck them out into a hard, cold world to live as best they can.

Yet we see this happen every day. A girl and boy who have been reared in a beautiful home, who have always had the best of food and good clothes and cars and amusements and travel and servants to wait upon them, get married and are thereby suddenly reduced from affluence to poverty. Father, who used to pay their bills, washes his hands of them. They are on their own, and their own isn't enough to keep them in the way in which they have been accustomed to live. Often it isn't enough to even provide them with a decent living.

And that is why so many marriages that should be successes go on the rocks. We hear that the young A.'s, who have been married only a couple of years, are going to get a divorce and we can't understand it. Why John is such a splendid young man, so moral and upright and energetic, and Mary is such a fine girl, and they were so much in love with each other! It seemed one of the matches made in heaven. Yet Mary has taken the baby and gone back home to her father and mother, and John has returned to his people and another home is in ruins and two youngsters are bitterly unhappy. And we wonder what's the matter.

The matter is the lack of money. The marriage was insufficiently financed. A thousand dollars a year would have saved it from bankruptcy and kept it a going concern. They only needed a little more capital to work on.

John found that he couldn't play golf or belong to clubs after he was married. He had to sell his car to pay the bills when the baby came. When his good clothes wore out he had to buy cheap ones. He was harassed by debts and hounded by bill collectors, and he lay awake at night wondering where the rent money was to come from, and it made him cross and irritable, and he didn't hesitate to say what kind of a fool a man was to burden himself with a family.

And Mary, who had never even made her own bed or counted the cost of anything, grew peevish and fretful and complaining over cooking and scrubbing and baby-tending. Overwork and the lack of beauty parlors and good clothes robbed her of her good looks, and when she saw herself so sadly changed, and when she chafed under a life that was dull and hard and full of sacrifices she turned upon her husband with bitter reproaches. And there were criminations and recriminations and daily quarrels until the final break-up.

And this would not have happened if they had had enough money just to ease them over the rough spots and give them a little of the comforts to which they had been accustomed until they could get on their feet and provide for themselves.

Of course, many parents are not able to help their children financially after they are married. Then these should not bring up their children with crepe-de-Chine and twelve-cylinder tastes and habits, for we do not miss the thing we have never had. It is our ungratified desires that torment us.

Many parents feel that because they had a hard struggle when they were first married and lived poorly and humbly, their children should do the same way, but they forget that their parents had never indulged them in the things in which they have indulged their own children, and that the whole standard of living has changed so that the things that were once luxuries have become necessities.

It is for these reasons that parents should give their children a helping hand when they marry. Far, far better for them if they had fewer cars and French frocks before marriage and a regular allowance from father afterward. DOROTHY DIX.

• • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—You say that what makes marriage a success is congeniality. What is a man to do when he learns that the most congenial girl he has ever met is twelve years his senior? JOHN.

Answer—Marry her. DOROTHY DIX.

Religion of Olden Egypt

JUDGING THE DOUBLE

After reaching the Hall of Judgment, the double of the Egyptian was forced to stand befor forty-two judges and tell them about his life in the world above.

Thoth makes record of weighing the heart of another spirit.

The judges were stern and not easy to look at. One was called "Flame Hugger," and others were known as "Bone Breaker," "White Teeth," "Shadow Eater," "Turn Face" and "Two Eyes of Flame."

At the head of the judges, however, was the great and one god, Osiris, who once had lived on earth. The double must have found it a help to turn from the fierce judges to the good Osiris.

Before these judges, the double was forced to deny that he had committed any of forty-two sins. He addressed each judge by name and mentioned the part of Egypt in which that judge was given special worship. As he did so, he spoke of a certain sin which he had not committed.

It was expected that the double should know all the names of the judges, as well as the list of sins. This knowledge could be gained from the "Book of the Dead." A copy of this book (a roll of papyrus containing written words) was buried with many mummies.

Among the statements which the double was expected to make were these:

"I have not killed anyone."
"I have not robbed."
"I did not make people afraid."
"I did not speak lies."
"I was not puffed up."
"I was not greedy."
"I did not give short measure of grain."

Next the double gave a speech to the judges, and in it he said:

"Hail to you, ye gods! I know you. I know your names . . . I have done that which pleases the gods. I gave food to the hungry, water to the thirsty, clothing to the naked, and a ferry to him who was without a boat. I made offerings to the gods, and food offerings for the dead. Save me! Protect me!"

Later the heart of the double was weighed in order to learn whether or not he had spoken the truth. If the balance was not right, he was thrown to a hungry monster which waited nearby, but if his words were true, he was able to look forward with joy to a happy life in the Fields of Aalu.

A god named Thoth made a record each time the heart was weighed. This god was pictured with the head of an ibis, a bird which was held sacred in ancient Egypt.

Liner Meets Fog After Fine Trip

Ms. Aorangi Delayed Two Hours in Steaming Up Straits This Morning

Brings Passengers, Cargo and Mails For Victoria; Left Later For Vancouver

After a fine voyage all the way from Sydney, the Canadian Australasian motorliner Aorangi ran into dense banks of fog as she came up the Straits from Cape Flattery this morning. Her arrival was delayed two hours, although she was still nearly a full day ahead of schedule. She tied up at the Rithet piers at 11 o'clock and proceeded to Vancouver two hours later. Besides Sydney, she came from Auckland, Suva and Honolulu.

Capt. T. V. Hill, regular master of the Niagara was on the bridge of the Aorangi this voyage, while Capt. J. P. Spring-Brown, the regular skipper, is on furlough in Australia. Capt. Martin will bring the Niagara to Victoria next month and Capt. Spring-Brown will be back here aboard the Aorangi in December.

There were only fifty-nine passengers aboard the Aorangi when she docked this morning. Several passengers from all classes disembarked here, a number proceeding to Seattle this afternoon by the Ss. Princess Alice. A few people from the Hawaiian Islands arrived to spend a few days on Vancouver Island. They brought their cars along with them and will motor up-island before returning to Victoria to sail next Wednesday by the Aorangi for Honolulu. Several of the passengers proceeding to Vancouver were en route to England. They will cross Canada and sail in a week or ten days from Montreal and Quebec for Europe.

GOOD CARGO

The Aorangi brought a fair parcel of general cargo from the Antipodes. Skins, including kangaroo, wallaby, rabbit skins, butter and frozen meats, were discharged here. Mail for Victoria amounted to 206 bags. Of this amount thirty-five bags were for local distribution, eleven for fast delivery to Seattle by seaplane and 160 bags for the United States. Canadian and United Kingdom mails went on to Vancouver.

Passengers aboard this morning included Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Vicars, well-known residents of Sydney, on a holiday trip to this continent; Professor R. M. Allan of the University of Melbourne, en route to Chicago to attend a medical conference; Professor L. Mander of the University of Washington at Seattle, returning from a visit to his former home in Adelaide; J. Crisp, well-known business man of Auckland, and Miss J. E. Crossley, M. T. SEES BIG YEAR FOR CHURCHILL

"The Pas, Man., Oct. 5—"I can see no reason why at least forty ships should not come to Churchill next year," stated A. L. Lawes, Montreal shipper, on arrival here from the northern port. "Navigation over the Bay route is obviously safe and facilities at Churchill are of the best."

An increase in general cargoes from the west going through Churchill in 1934 was forecast by the eastern shipper. During the season just closed ten cargoes, mostly wheat shipments, left the Hudson Bay fort.

SEIZED CRAFT IS IDENTIFIED

Ss. Holmewood, Taken Yesterday at N.Y., Formerly Was Canadian Pathfinder

Floated Aimlessly on Hudson With $1,000,000 Cargo

New York, Oct. 5.—A $1,000,000 cargo of fine liquors—25,000 cases—in a deserted, Nova Scotia freighter, the Holmewood, floated aimlessly in the Hudson River yesterday waiting for anybody to take it. The United States Coast Guard did.

The crew—nineteen bronzed veterans of the sea from Nova Scotia—was found in Haverstraw, N.Y., looking for the main highway. They were arrested and charged with vagrancy.

They were brought down the River to New York as prisoners on their own vessel. When the freighter was anchored the prisoners were transferred to the U.S. Barge office, at the Battery. They were then taken to the Federal building.

Seizure of the Holmewood, of British Registry, ended a search by coast guardsmen and customs patrols which started Monday night. Warned that an attempt would be made to land a large cargo of liquor, the government boats patrolled the Hudson and East Rivers for more than forty-eight hours.

Halifax, Oct. 5.—The steamer Holmewood, seized on the Hudson River yesterday with a million-dollar cargo of liquor, is the former Canadian Pathfinder, formerly operated by the Canadian government merchant marine. After the Canadian National Steamships took over the government line the Patrfinder was sold.

German Plot On U.S. Ships Told

Baltimore Court Hears That Germans Intended to Equip Commerce Raider

Would Then Prey on West Coast Shipping; Captain of German Liner Key Man

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 5.—An alleged plot to prey on West Coast shipping during the World War was revealed in the records of testimony taken at a secret hearing into the Black Tom explosion, which were filed late yesterday in the United States district court here.

The revelations, along with further disclosures in German conspiracies during the war, were contained in the testimony of Paul G. L. Hilken, admittedly paymaster for German saboteurs in the United States before the United States entered the war, and son of Henry G. Hilken, former German consul for Baltimore. Copies of the transcript also were sent to Robert W. Bonynge, American agent, before the Mixed Claims Commission, who is seeking to reopen the Black Tom and Kingsland munitions explosion cases. Hilken's secret testimony was taken last month before United States Commissioner J. Frank Supplee, under the direction of United States Attorney Simon E. Sobeloff.

WAS KEY MAN

Frederick Hinsch, according to the testimony, was planning to command a commerce raider, which was to be equipped in Mexico with guns smuggled from the United States, and was to prey on West Coast shipping. It has been testified Hinsch came to Baltimore as captain of the North German Lloyd liner Neckar in the fall of 1914, and was employed as a key man in sabotage activities.

A statement by Raoual Gerdts, a messenger of German agents, said Hinsch told Gerdts to tell Fritz Heermann that Hinsch was "getting 75 millimetre guns" across the Mexican border for the cruiser which Herrmann had arranged to buy for $50,000. Gerdst was to instruct Herrmann, the testimony continued, to recruit a crew of 200 men for the venture.

Other assertions revealed in Hilken's testimony were the establishment of a laboratory at St. Louis by Herrmann for the breeding of anthrax germs, and the assertion that Hilden had sent $50,000 to Japan for sabotage there, as well as large sums to a man named Arnold, who was working in South America for the German general staff.

Most of Sobeloff's questions were directed at the activities of Hinsch, Herrmann and others at the time of the Black Tom explosion in July, 1916. Hinsch has denied having had anything to do with the blast.

SHIP DRIFTS IN BIG STORM

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 5. — A wireless message from the United States freighter Oakwood, picked up here yesterday evening, reported the steamer was out of control and drifting in a severe storm about 120 miles south of Cape Romano, on the west coast of Florida. The vessel did not ask for help in the message received here.

Available records here list the Oakwood as belonging to the United States Shipping Board, with her home port at Houston. She was built in Alexandria in 1920.

MAY BUILD NEW LINER

Head of I.M.M. States Big Ships No Longer Sound and Economic

New York, Oct. 5.—A special wireless to The New York Times from London says: "P. V. G. Mitchell, vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine, interviewed before sailing on the liner Manhattan for New York last week, said big ships were "unsound and uneconomic," his views conflicting with those recently expressed here urging resumption of work on the giant Cunarder.

Mr. Mitchell indicated the possibility that construction of another vessel of the Manhattan and Washington type would soon be ordered. He said while the Leviathan was being kept in condition, an important increase in traffic would be needed to justify her recommissioning.

The big ship, he added, was of the type developed in days of prosperity and when the tide of emigrant travel was strong.

"'Cabin liners have carried gratifying numbers, and we have every reason to feel that we have produced a type of ship that appeals very strongly to the American traveler,' he added."

LINDBERGHS IN ENGLAND

Famous Couple Reached Southampton Yesterday and Then Disappeared

Southampton, Oct. 5.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh arrived here late yesterday afternoon after a flight from Stavanger, Norway, and within a short time left the airport without revealing their plans or where they intended to spend the night.

Lindbergh waved aside would-be questioners with a jocular, "I have no statement to make and can say nothing."

London, Oct. 5.—Information was brought to Croydon airport yesterday evening that Colonel Lindbergh and his wife, after flying from Stavanger, Norway, to Southampton, had decided they would not go to London yet, but would "disappear" for a short time.

This information was brought by a pilot who flew down to Southampton to bring Colonel Lindbergh to Croydon if necessary. The aviator said Colonel Lindbergh had intimated to him he would not be in London for two or three days. The pilot added, "he is staying in Southampton to-night and then going to visit some friends in Wales."

Many people had waited at the Croydon airport in the hope of welcoming the American couple.

THREE FLIERS FINISH FLIGHT

New York, Oct. 5.—M. J. Chumbley, New York aviator, completed a two-legged "darkness derby" hop from Los Angeles to win $1,500 in prize mney and first honors in the transcontinental night air race with an elapsed time of twenty-four hours and twenty-six minutes.

Second was Merle Nelson, Los Angeles flier, who made the Los Angeles-Wichita, Wichita-New York jumps in thirty hours and sixteen minutes and won $750.

Frank Bowman Jr. of El Paso, Texas, was third with an elapsed time of 30.41. These were the only ones to finish out of the starting field of seven.

C.P.R. TRAIN IS DERAILED

Grand Forks, Oct. 5.—Eleven freight cars were strewn across the line and a portion of track was twisted in a derailment of a Canadian Pacific Railway train one mile west of Midway near the international boundary yesterday.

A broken wheel was blamed for the wreck, which occurred late Tuesday. The cars, laden with metal enroute to the Coast, piled up across the right of way.

Wrecking crews from Nelson and Penticton began to clear the line. A Vancouver-Bound passenger train was held all night at Greenwood.

Freedom of Press Ends in German

NO APPEAL

In their new status German journalists must bow to the so-called "leadership principle," meaning they must take orders from the top, which permits no appeal.

Chancellor Hitler signed the measure yesterday.

Any infringement may remove the offender from further opportunity to pursue his profession.
